Conservation President

Dr. C. F. Luebbert, a Tipton osteopath, was recently elected president of the 22,000-member Conservation Federation of Missouri at the organization's annual meeting in Jefferson City. The federation, which is a union of approximately 185 local conservation clubs like the Sedalia Rod and Gun Club, is a non-governmental agency which tries to promote and preserve the state's natural beauty and resources for aesthetic and recreational purposes. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

TIPTON — What began as a scout master's interest in the outdoors has led a Tipton osteopath to the presidency of the Conservation Federation of Missouri.

Dr. C. F. Luebbert, 46, who has been a resident of Tipton since 1946, was elected president of the federation at its recent annual meeting in Jefferson City. He succeeds Claude Relf, a Kansas City railroad engineer.

In an interview with The Democrat-Capital Dr. Luebbert recalled how, years ago, he used to lead boys on field trips and instill in them an appreciation for nature's beauty and the need to conserve the earth's resources. Since then ecologists and conservationists have gone on to fight battles against polluting industries and the general abuse of the environment.

Dr. Luebbert believes in combating senseless abuse of Missouri's natural resources through legislation. However, he still retains his scout master's faith in the younger generation, and repeatedly emphasizes the need to develop programs to enlist their support.

He takes a common sense approach to enlisting young people's support. "If a kid reminds you not to do a thing like littering roads, you're likely to remember it," he reasoned. Dr. Luebbert is optimistic enough to believe that young people will be influential agents in carrying on the quiet revolution of conservation.

As an initial step, he hopes to introduce a program of education and action to youth organizations in Tipton. "I'm very serious about it," Dr. Luebbert pointed out. He said he hopes to see the program spread throughout the state.

Dr. Luebbert and his wife Viola are practicing conservationists. With their two children away in Phoenix, Ariz., the doctor and his wife share the fun and responsibility of maintaining two farms near Tipton. They live on one farm and use the other 500-acre farm for pasture, woodlands, wildlife feedlots and timber. The farms have several ponds.

In Dr. Luebbert's office lobby hangs a painting of a deer hunter done by Mrs. Luebbert. Also prominently displayed is a sign which reads, "Please do not litter your streets and highways with empty containers."

The doctor and his wife are members of St. Andrews Catholic Church. He is a past president of the Tipton Chamber of Commerce, Lions Club, Farmers and Sportsmen's Club, a fourth-degree Knights of Columbus, is on the board of the Charles E. Still Hospital, Jefferson City, and on the staff of St. Mary's Hospital, Jefferson City.

The Conservation Federation of Missouri, which Dr. Luebbert heads, is often confused with the Missouri Conservation Commission. The Commission is the policy-making wing of the Department of Conservation.

Might Curb ABM

To Seek Arms Limit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon announced today that the United States and the Soviet Union have agreed to work this year toward an agreement on limiting antiballistic missiles and on limiting offensive nuclear weapons.

In a brief statement on live television and radio, Nixon declared "this agreement is a major step in breaking the stalemate on nuclear arms talks" begun with the Soviets in 1969.

Nixon's short announcement timed with a similar one to be issued by Moscow—gave no details on what breakthrough he anticipated in the U.S.-Soviet Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) which got underway in Finland in the fall of 1969.

The major U.S.-Soviet disarmament negotiations have been stalemated over a Soviet proposal to go ahead with a deal just to curb ABMs (antiballistic missiles). The United States has been contending that a SALT agreement should include both offensive weapons such as intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs) and ABMs in the same package.

Nixon's announcement indicated there may have been some compromise by each side in order to make progress toward an historic agreement to limit the arms race between the two superpowers.

But his national broadcast did not spell this out.

Further details were expected to be made public by the White House later.

The current SALT talks are in Vienna.

Nixon has been meeting here this week with Ambassador Gerard Smith, head of the U.S. delegation to the SALT talks, and delegation members. The subject of their talks has been held in strict secrecy.

Nixon said the agreement had been reached at the highest level. He did not specify with whom. The Soviet Communist Party leader is Leonid Brezhnev. The prime minister is Alexei N. Kosygin.

Nixon addressing a television and radio network, called the agreement a "significant development in breaking the deadlock" which has stalled the Strategic Limitation Talks for a year.

The two powers, Nixon said in a statement being released simultaneously in Moscow, have agreed to concentrate in this year's talks on limitation of the deployment of anti-ballistic missiles (ABM).

Nixon, speaking from the White House press room, said "intensive negotiations" must yet be carried out at the SALT talks in Vienna.

Forty-five Suspects Nabbed in Drug Raids

(Democrat-Capital Service)

WARRENSBURG — Nine persons were arrested here and another in Clinton about 5:30 a.m. Thursday in coordinated drug raids over a five county area in west central Missouri resulting in the apprehension of 45 persons.

The raids were conducted in several communities by police departments and sheriff's officers in Johnson, Henry, Platte, Jackson and Clay counties, the Missouri Highway Patrol and the Central Missouri State College Security Department.

Two separate raids here resulted in nine arrests, including three for the sale of narcotics, according to Johnson County Sheriff Harlen Temple.

Temple told The Democrat-Capital the arrests were made with the help of undercover agents who had earlier made drug purchases.

Charged with the sale of narcotics were three CMSC students, Michael Goth, 19, Warrensburg; Daryl McNeely, 23, Excelsior Springs; and Howard Dale, 21, Sheldon, Mo.

Charged with possession of narcotics were Ralph McNeely, 20, Lawson; Robert Davis, 21, Kansas City; Robert Maher, 23, Shenandoah, Iowa; Anthony Frusco, 23, Knob Noster; Thomas Voitenki, 25, Shenandoah, Iowa; and Edward Deliz, 22, Cliffside Park, N.J.

Arrested in Clinton at the same time by the Henry County Sheriff's Department and the Highway Patrol was Shelley Rinehart, 18, Clinton, charged with selling narcotics. Rinehart was arrested on a warrant issued by Henry County Prosecuting Attorney Charles Stratton and was to have been transferred to Warrensburg Thursday afternoon.

All were in jail at noon Thursday awaiting an afternoon arraignment at which time bond would be set.

Coordinated raids in Platte County resulted in 21 persons being taken into custody. Seven persons were being held in both Clay and Jackson Counties. Ten of those apprehended in Platte County were reported to be juveniles.

In Labor Charge

Claim Unfair Practices

A National Labor Relations Board trial examiner from Kansas City will conduct a hearing in Magistrate Court chambers here June 2 concerning issues in a strike by Sedalia Carpenter Local 1792 against the Letourneau Brothers Construction Co.

The hearing date was announced Wednesday when the complaint and notice of the hearing were released.

The complaint, dated April 20 and signed by Thomas C. Hendrix, regional director of the NLRB, levels charges of unfair labor practices against the construction company.

The union charges the Letourneau firm with failure to meet specifications of a contract adopted July 1, 1970, and with trying to persuade employees to drop their union membership.

Leo Letourneau, 3003 Wing, named in the complaint as an agent for the construction company, told The Democrat-Capital Wednesday evening that he has violated no contract, nor has he attempted to get employees to quit the union.

According to Richard Middleton, business representative for Carpenters Local 1792, the Sedalia Builders Association negotiated a new contract last summer which was to go into effect July 1, 1970, implementing a base pay raise from $4.35 to $4.60 per hour.

Letourneau claims there is no such organization as the Sedalia Builders Association and stated, "I have never talked to the union as a member of any association." Letourneau also denied ever having signed any contract with the carpenters union.

On July 1, 1970, all of the firms employing members of the carpenters union increased wages as specified by the alleged contract, according to Middleton. The problem came when the second raise, a 35 cent base pay hike scheduled for Jan. 1, 1971, was not forthcoming from the Letourneau firm. Middleton added that a number of the union members working for Letourneau at that time quit when they didn't get the raise, while two others stayed on. He said he did not know if the remaining employees got the raise.

Letourneau said Wednesday that all of his employees are receiving union scale wages or above and always have, except for a short time following the Jan. 1 incident.

Included in the letter from Hendrix is a paragraph alleging that Letourneau told an employee his firm was "going non-union" and if the employee did not like it he could find work somewhere else. The statement was made on or about Dec. 31, 1970, according to the letter.

Letourneau maintained he never made any such statement.

Jack Whitacre, an attorney with Spencer,

Sane, Britt and Brown, a Kansas City law firm representing the construction company, told The Democrat-Capital Wednesday night that the main issue is whether or not Letourneau ever negotiated as a member of any builders' association, and if he did, whether or not he is bound by any agreements made by such an organization.

Locally, Tom Keating will be handling the case for Letourneau, along with Ned Holland of the Kansas City law firm.

George Romney:

Future Boom Is Seen In Modular Housing

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) — Housing Secretary George Romney says the advent of mass-produced, modular housing will bring as much progress to the home building industry "in the next 10 years as we have seen in the past 10 centuries."

Moments after Romney spoke Wednesday, the first modular unit built under the government's Operation Breakthrough rolled out. The parts headed toward Kalamazoo to be assembled today.

They were built at the Levitt Building Systems, Inc., plant dedicated Wednesday. "The Housing industry today is in the same position as was the automobile industry in 1912," said Romney, former head of American Motors Corp. He predicted that within 10 years 75 per cent of the nation's housing would be produced on assembly lines.

Modular housing consists of separate, easily transportable units produced at a factory and assembled at the construction site.

Levitt plans to build 600 modular houses this year. Company President Charles L.

Riederman told Romney that by 1973, he expected 2,000 units to be produced on a single shift. He said the company intended to build seven such plants over the next 10 years throughout the country.

Levitt is one of 22 companies which won awards for design and development of housing systems in competition sponsored by Operation Breakthrough, which Romney initiated in 1969. They are expected to join Levitt in the near future in competing for the modular housing market.

Of the 600 units to be produced at the Levitt plant this year, 400 are to be assembled at a site north of Detroit, 83 in Kalamazoo and 28 in Seattle.

Riederman said all 83 units in Kalamazoo would be completed by the end of July. The townhouses and land will cost $20,000 to $25,000. They will be assembled from up to four basic units, each measuring 15 by 60 feet, he said.

He said modular housing can be assembled in a variety of designs and fashioned in all price ranges.

Assembly in the Detroit area and at Seattle will start later, he said.

Heath, Pompidou

Plan Meeting on Market

PARIS (AP) — President Georges Pompidou and Prime Minister Edward Heath met today in an attempt to revive the old British-French alliance so France won't again, veto Britain's application to join the European Common Market.

The success of their talks depended largely on the ability of the two leaders to align their policies toward the United States and West Germany. To win Pompidou's backing, Heath had to convince his host that Britain's cooperation with the Americans and Germans would never be at France's expense.

In nearly seven hours of discussions today and Friday, the two men were to range over the affairs of Western Europe and its role in the world, the progress of the Brussels negotiations to enlarge the six-nation Common Market, and the long-term political, monetary and economic implications of enlarging the European Economic Community.

Pompidou and Heath grouped their talks around three main themes:

—The sort of Europe they want: This takes in the role a united Western Europe should seek to play in the Middle East, Asia, Africa, toward the Communist powers and so on. It also includes the defense system Europeans should work toward, bearing in mind mounting pressures for reduction in American forces abroad.

—The state of the Brussels negotiations on British admission to the Common Market: This means examining the remaining disagreements. A compromise is expected over the money Britain must contribute to the economic community's coffers. It also means arguing about Britain's promise to safeguard the economy of New Zealand, which would go broke if it were to lose its special access to the British market for its meat and dairy products.

—The political, cultural and economic effects of enlarging the Common Market. Here Pompidou seemed certain to press Heath for a promise to phase out the role of the pound sterling as a reserve currency. He was likely to want guarantees that Britain will not bring the problems of the pound into the community. Heath was reported ready to discuss any precise proposal Pompidou puts up, for instance, merging sterling's international role into that of some sort of successor currency collectively backed by the Common Market states.

He was certain not to agree to phase out the pound's role unless it is replaced by something else.

Recently the French have also been hammering at the theme that English might oust French as the main language of the community once Britain joins. But Heath brought Pompidou a promise that Britain would do nothing to impose English on its future partners.

Back home in Britain, the Louis Harris Poll reported a public opinion sampling in which 62 per cent opposed joining the Common Market despite the recent progress in the Brussels negotiations. Twenty per cent were in favor of membership, and 18 per cent were undecided. But 82 per cent said they believed Britain would join anyway.

Ann Landers

Facial Appearance Should Be Ignored

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please tell me why a well-educated, well-traveled, socially prominent, affluent, middle-aged woman who spends a fortune on clothes and a mint of money in the beauty shop is content to go through life with two ugly hair-sprouting moles on her face? One is about the size of a large pea. The other is nearly as big as a dime.

Whenever I see this woman I am jarred anew by the sight of her moles although I have known her for several years. I cannot understand her indifference. Is it possible she is unaware of these unsightly growths? Would it be terribly rude of me to suggest that she have them removed? I'd like to hear your opinion on this. — Cape Cod.

Dear Cod: Keep quiet. The woman knows the moles are there. If she wanted to do something about them she would. Apparently they do not bother her. And, frankly, they should not bother you that much. I suspect someone in your childhood (a person you didn't like) had hair-sprouting moles, and this is why you are overreacting.

Dear Ann Landers: Who do you think you are that you can call a person insensitive.

inconsiderate and sadist just because she telephones a friend in the middle of the night to tell her a mutual acquaintance has died? More often than not the person who makes such a call hates to be the one who breaks the bad news, but someone has to do it.

What about nurses, doctors, police officers? Are these people sadists also? I hope you do better on your next answer. This one was lousy. — Green Bay Reader.

Dear Green: Nurses, doctors and police officers must notify the next of kin because it is their professional responsibility to do so. Instructions must be given and decisions must be made. It is up to the family to issue orders.

Please tell me what purpose is served by waking up a person in the middle of the night to inform him that a mutual acquaintance has died? The person who gets the call can do nothing but lose a night's sleep.

As I said in my first response, anyone who feels that he cannot wait until morning to pass the bad news has a streak of sadism.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter has always been precocious. Beverly could read before she started school and her memory was extraordinary at a very early age. She skipped the first grade and went directly into the second. That was three years ago. Now the teacher wants Bev to skip the sixth grade and go from the fifth to the seventh. I am against it. The girl would find herself in high school with students who are 2½ and 3 years older than she. (I forgot to mention that Bev was permitted to start school at age 4½.)

My husband says I am depriving her of an opportunity — that she will be bored if she isn't challenged to learn. He also insists it would be an honor to graduate from high school at 14½. What is your opinion? — Super Smart Can Be Trouble.

Dear Su: This is an honor your daughter can live without. The social pressures on a girl who is three years younger than her classmates can produce serious problems.

Brilliance can be a curse if it is not properly channeled. Go to school and talk with the principal. Ask if he can suggest ways to keep the girl intellectually stimulated without advancing her another grade.

What awaits you on the other side of the marriage veil? How can you be sure your marriage will work? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50c in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Golf Ball Chance For Agnew Enemies

NEW YORK (AP) — People here will have a chance this week to hit golf balls at a picture of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, for fun and charity.

A 10-foot-high photograph of the vice president will be mounted between 150 and 200 feet from tees at a golf range in Queens, contestants can whack away Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The photo will be surrounded by 25 baskets and for every ball that drops into a basket, the golf range will contribute $10 to a fund for the building of a day care center in Astoria, Queens.

Measure Is Killed

Proponents of the measure argued before its defeat Tuesday that present statutes are punitive and excessive and fail to deter violations, especially when small quantities of marijuana are involved.

Waterway Profiting Wheat Crop

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Oklahoma Gov. David Hall says his state's new 1.2 billion Arkansas River waterway is adding nine cents a bushel in profits to southwestern farmers who ship their wheat by water.

Hall said the 450-mile-long waterway is bringing chapter in-bound freight rates to Dallas and North Texas.

"Northeastern Oklahoma has long been called the magic empire," Hall told the Dallas Forum Tuesday. "Today, the magic is stronger and the empire is growing."

Gov. Hall said President Nixon will dedicate the waterway and the Port Catoosa formally on June 4-5.

In addition to shipping grain, Hall said, the waterway is also used for shipping steel, chemicals, foodstuffs, lumber, equipment and hundreds of other items.

Cotonou Is Paris For Expatriates

By JAMES M. MARKHAM
Associated Press Writer

COTONOU, Dahomey (AP) — The bored Englishman or American, keen for a bit of Gallic excitement and cuisine, flies off from Leeds or Cleveland to Paris.

Other Englishmen and Americans, passing expatriate existences in the former British colonies of Ghana and Nigeria, find Paris somewhat distant. They prefer Cotonou.

The comparison of somnolent, potholed Cotonou (population 120,000) with the Queen of Cities may seem far-fetched.

But after dining out in Accra or Lagos, in pseudo-French or Italian restaurants run by Lebanese or Indians who have never set foot in France or Italy, an Anglo-Saxon gourmet finds Cotonou's Hotel de la Plage a veritable three-star Michelin.

Sitting under the arching palm trees of the Plage's open air restaurant, with the Atlantic surf pounding 30 yards away, scores of weekending visitors devour artichokes (from Paris), Chateaubriand a la Bernaise (from Paris), petits pois and lettuce (from Paris) and a good French wine. Followed by a plate of cheeses and a bowl of apples and pears (also from Paris).

When it comes, the bill might as well be from Paris, too.

While the English decolonized Nigeria and Ghana and left them both to run their own affairs, the colonial French granted political independence to places like Dahomey, but then stayed on.

All over former French West Africa one finds Frenchmen running patisseries, hotels, sports and clothes shops, garages and grocery stores. In the Ivory Coast, which has a French population of 40,000, one finds French hairdressers, masseurs, prostitutes, bartenders and at least one French valet—that of President Felix Houphouet-Boigny.

With so many Frenchmen—and given the French belief that good eating is a serious undertaking—there is little wonder that an improbable place like Cotonou has become a watering spot for the hardy Anglo-Saxons.

Just as they fly in their lettuce and their cheeses, the 4,000-odd Frenchmen here insist on importing the latest fashions from the Metropolis.

Even the most leathery, malaria-ridden ancient colon, an expelled veteran of Algeria and Guinea, will be attired in tight-fitting, wide-belted pants and body-hugging shiny shirt. And his wife likewise, with appropriate feminine variations.

"But most of this stuff is for the Anglo-Saxons from Lagos," observed one French boutique owner, who has been here for 20 years. "It's lucky you're here at the beginning of the weekend, by the end it's all sold."

The only architectural monument in town is the ghastly $3.5 million presidential palace, whose construction in 1963 helped provoke the first of Dahomey's five coups d'etat.

One can visit a pleasant fishing village on stilts, Ganvie, a few miles from Cotonou. Or play tennis at the Club du Benin.

But, when all is said and done, Paris is probably nicer.

Water, Power Supplies Adequate

By ROBERT H. TARBELL
Democrat-Capitol Writer

Demands for electricity and water are not expected to reach crisis proportions here at any time in the near future, according to spokesmen from the Missouri Public Service Co. and the Sedalia Water Department.

Oren Henry, district office manager for MPSC in Sedalia, said even though there were some growth areas in the whole region served by MPSC, there is little chance that power supplies here will be less than adequate this summer.

"With our Sibley, Mo., generating station we will be able to meet demands of our customers in the foreseeable future," Henry said. He indicated that the Sibley station's power potential was so huge that MPSC was selling electricity to other companies. "If a time does come where we need more power, I am sure we could purchase it elsewhere," he said.

In power consumption, Henry said demands on the company were increasing about 10 to 12 per cent a year. "We fall below that average demand in the Sedalia area," Henry said. Other parts of the region served by MPSC do have increasing power demands, however.

"As you probably know, we serve a large area of land on the outskirts of Kansas City. As an example of where more power is needed, just look at Blue Springs where they are completing a new house every day. This requires a lot of wiring and lot of powerline construction," he said.

Henry said because power supplies here are plentiful no brownouts, blackouts or disruptions are foreseen other than those caused by storm damage.

The two household appliances which demand more power than others are air conditioners and television sets, Henry said.

"A three ton air conditioner, when operating at full capacity, uses 3,000 watts of power, which is equivalent to the amount of power used by two burners on high on an electric stove. And, I must mention that those two electric burners are only on for brief periods of time and an air conditioner sometimes runs 24 hours a day in warm weather," he said.

Color television sets sometimes draw over 400 watts. Henry said that smaller appliances such as fans and non-heat producing articles, such as refrigerators, drew less power.

"The main thrust of the drain caused by air conditioners comes in the three hot months of the year and it seems like they all go on at once," he said.

Herbert Taylor, manager of the Sedalia Water Department, said that water availability would not be affected in Sedalia unless there was a drought which lasted more than a year.

"I don't anticipate any water crisis for Sedalia in the near future because we have so many alternatives to just using Spring Fork Lake," Taylor said.

"Right now, Spring Fork Lake is only 2 1/2 feet below its capacity of 420 million gallons," Taylor said.

Taylor said if a problem did develop, just one of the several wells at the waterworks could supply the city with 1,500 gallons of fresh water per minute. "Generally, we start mixing lake water with well water when the lake level drops six to 10 feet below capacity," Taylor said.

Besides the lake and the wells, Taylor said there was a holding basin of water at the waterworks that could be utilized and even Flat Creek, for that matter.

The average demands for water per day in Sedalia come to about 2.5 million gallons, according to Taylor. "On the hottest day last year, that was July 15, 4,356,900 gallons were used," he said.

Taylor said the last drought that really affected Sedalia was in 1959 and there had not been a serious shortage since then. "We're just not looking for any problems at all this summer," he said.

Plan Special Salute For Older Persons

A "Salute to the Aging" will be held in Sedalia complete with a parade, dedication and other ceremonies May 31.

The Rev. Thomas Davis of Taylor Chapel United Methodist Church is the coordinator for the event.

The parade will form at 11 a.m. at City Hall and Mayor Jerry Jones has indicated he will participate. Jones was named as an honorary member of the steering committee, which also includes Davis Allen, Bolden Jones, R. W. Smith and Davis.

Ichord Continues Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Internal Security Committee reached today for banking records its chairman hints will illustrate influence exercised by those he calls highly placed Communists in antiwar activity.

Rep. Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., arranged for disclosure of subpoenaed financial information during the third day of the panel's examination of two organizations sponsoring demonstrations here April 24 to May 6.

Without disclosing names, Ichord directed the committee's staff Tuesday to notify two members of the Socialist Workers Party and its youth arm, the Young Socialist Alliance, that they are mentioned in the bank data.

According to committee practice, those whose names are made public by the panel are given an invitation to reply to remarks made about them at hearings.

Meanwhile, Lawrence Cott of New York City, editor of the "Combat Newsletter," a publication he said "tries to report on the revolutionary movement today," told the committee the Socialist Workers Party is a subversive organization with significant membership in the National Peace Action Coalition.

He said the party is composed of followers of the doctrines of Leon Trotsky, the Soviet revolutionary expelled from Russia by Josef Stalin and later assassinated in Mexico.

Ichord said the Trotskyites and old-line Communist party members had been in a running battle until Xuan Thuy, North Vietnam's chief negotiator at the Vietnam peace talks in Paris, urged in February that they get together in support of the U.S. antiwar movement.

Another Tuesday witness, Capitol Police Chief James M. Powell, said the demonstrators marching on Congress May 5 were a "riotous mob of people out of control," so he ordered 1,046 of them arrested on the House steps even though three Democratic congressmen said they had agreed to meet the protesters there.

Powell said the three members of Congress—Reps. Bella

Sadat Restates Conditions

BEIRUT (AP) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat today restated his conditions for reopening the Suez Canal and made no modifications in them.

In a speech to the National Assembly broadcast by Cairo Radio, Sadat said Egyptian troops must cross to the canal's east bank and Israeli withdrawal from the canal must be the first stage of a complete withdrawal "with a defined timetable" from all territory occupied in the 1967 war.

Sadat added that Egypt refuses any open-ended cease-fire as long as "one single Israeli soldier exists on our land."

Sadat said these conditions were Egypt's reply to negotiations initiated by Secretary of State William P. Rogers for an interim agreement to reopen the canal. He said Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad would present this position to Donald C. Bergus, the U.S. representative in Cairo, after the speech.

Sadat called on the United States to "squeeze" Israel to accept these conditions.

"I told Rogers I won't settle for arguments that the U.S. cannot exert pressure on Israel," he said. "I told him to tell Mr. Nixon that I don't demand American pressure on Israel but I want America to squeeze Israel in the interests of peace in the Middle East," said Sadat.

The president said Egypt's policy is based on two premises: "We shall not abandon one single inch of our land, and we refuse any compromise on the rights of the Palestinian people."

He charged that the Israelis tried to twist Egypt's offer last February on reopening the canal by claiming it was a separate solution. "This is not true," he declared. But he said Egypt still stands by the February offer if "only to get a peaceful solution in the Middle East moving."

It was Sadat's first appearance before the assembly since he emerged victorious from a power struggle last week. He was repeatedly interrupted by applause and shouts of support.

Praising the Soviet Union for its military aid, Sadat said Egypt's military recovery since the 1967 defeat "has made the whole world, including the United States, feel the need for a faster momentum for a peaceful settlement."

Turning to domestic policies, Sadat said a new constitution would be drafted and he would only be a one-term president. The term now is for six years.

Boundaries May Remain Unchanged

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A congressional redistricting bill which would preserve the districts of U.S. Reps. William L. Clay, D-St. Louis, and James W. Symington, D-Clayton, was approved by the House Redistrict Committee Wednesday.

The Senate's version of the bill to realign districts to fit 1970 census changes would have added new territory to the districts of both representatives and jeopardized their chances for re-election.

Clay would have been placed in a district with additional white Democratic votes in the Senate version of the bills, thereby opening the way for the possible candidacy of state Sen. Robert A. Young, D-St. Ann.

Rep. Gene Copeland, D-New Madrid, House committee chairman, said the vote on the measure was 11-3. He said he hoped to have it before the House for debate next week.

Because of the variance in the House and Senate plans, the final redistricting bill is almost certain to be a compromise between the two houses.

The variance among the district populations was 1 per cent above the median, the committee chairman said, and 1 per cent below—making a 2 per cent variance between the most and the least populated areas.

Jaycees To Attend Convention

Sedalia Jaycees will join the other 150 chapters of the Missouri Jaycees in Cape Girardeau this weekend for the annual state convention. An election of officers will be held and awards for the year's achievements will be presented. Highlight of the convention will be an address Saturday evening by Gordon Thomas, U.S. Jaycee president. Other speakers will include Frank Parsons, U.S. Jaycee vice-president.

Sedalia will be represented by Chuck Lawrence in the Speak-Up competition and Keith Rowland in the Spark-Plug competition. Jim Reed will represent the chapter in the Spoke competition.

Mrs. David Curry is representing Sedalia as a candidate for the Outstanding Young Woman award.

Friday a river-front party will be held to begin the weekend's activities and Saturday and Sunday business sessions will be held.

Members of the Sedalia delegation will include: Robert Burke, outgoing president; Joe Doggett, incoming president; and Mrs. Doggett; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Reed, Mr. and Mrs. David Curry, Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Rowland, Mr. and Mrs. Nevin Almquist, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Evert, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Moore, Joe Bode, Ron Hoppes and John Otten. Also attending will be Mrs. Tom Hall, secretary of the Missouri Jaycees.

Obituary

Russell F. Gruver

WARSAW — Russell F. Gruver, 65; Warsaw, died early Wednesday morning.

He was born April 12, 1906, in Chilhowee, the son of Frank and Pearl Gladden Gruver. He lived in Missouri most of his life, but moved to Phoenix, Ariz., in 1954 where he worked as a citrus fruit contractor.

He married Sadie Flynn in Phoenix on July 13, 1957.

He returned to Missouri in 1961 and moved to Warsaw in 1966, and had operated the Derby service station, at the junction of Highways 65 and 83, since that time.

He is survived by his widow of the home; his mother, Mrs. Pearl Carlyle, Kingsville; one son, Russell H. Gruver, Phoenix, Ariz.; two daughters, Mrs. Paul Sherman, Phoenix, Ariz.; and Mrs. Mary Nottingham, Panama Canal Zone; three step-daughters, Mrs. Charlotte Lauri and Mrs. Barbara Jean McBride, both of the state of California; Mrs. Wanda Bolen, Georgia; one step-son, Dennis Reed, also of California.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Friday at the Reser Funeral Chapel here with the Rev. J. D. Little officiating.

Burial will be in Englewood Cemetery, Clinton.

The family will receive friends at the funeral chapel from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday.

Burial was in Ridge Park Cemetery.

Used Hearing

Aid Batteries Are Collected

A campaign to recover used mercury and silver oxide hearing aid batteries is underway in Pettis County, it was learned Tuesday.

In its sixth year, the program is endorsed by the National Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults, according to A. B. Warren, co-ordinator of the local drive.

The collection effort is also described as an anti-pollution drive since mercury is considered a threat to the environment.

The hearing aid batteries will be processed and the mercury and silver oxide reused. Warren's RX Inc., 212 South Ohio, is the collection center in Sedalia.

Republicans against: Belmon, Okla.; Curtis, Neb.; Dole, Kan.; Hruska, Neb.

Laotians Abandon Outpost

SAIGON (AP) — The Royal Laotian Army has abandoned its last outpost on the Bolovens plateau in southern Laos, giving North Vietnam more supply routes down to Cambodia and South Vietnam. Military sources in Vientiane said commanders in southern Laos ordered the evacuation Wednesday of Houei Kong, 300 miles southeast of the Laotian capital, because the isolated outpost could not withstand an expected attack.

The sources said the troops withdrawing westward clashed several times with the North Vietnamese, but there were no casualty reports.

North Vietnamese forces captured the other two government posts on the Bolovens plateau, the towns of Pak Song and Ban Houei Sai, on Sunday and inflicted heavy casualties on the defenders.

Informed sources in Saigon said electronic monitors indicate that enemy truck traffic through the panhandle is "relatively light" because of the southwest monsoons. But U.S. B52 bombers, which operate above the rain clouds, kept up their raids on the Ho Chi Minh trail.

In South Vietnam, allied forces battled North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops Wednesday only 25 miles from Saigon, at four points around the A Shau valley and on two sides of the U Minh forest in the Mekong delta. Communiques said 79 of the enemy and 22 South Vietnamese were killed, and 47 South Vietnamese and six Americans were wounded.

On the third Indochina battleground, Cambodia, a new drive was reported under way south of Phnom Penh aimed at opening an alternate government supply route from the sea.

The U.S. Command disclosed a third "protective reaction" air strike inside North Vietnam this week, the 41st this year. It said two Air Force F4 Phantom fighter-bombers on Tuesday destroyed a 57mm antiaircraft gun that fired on them while they were attacking the Ho Chi Minh trail. The planes were not hit. The gun was a mile inside North Vietnam near the Ban Karai pass and 35 miles northwest of the demilitarized zone.

The U.S. Command also reported that 24 American servicemen were killed in combat last week, 27 died from nonhostile causes and 240 were wounded. It was the lowest toll of battle dead in three months and the first time in five months that nonhostile deaths exceeded those in combat. South Vietnamese headquarters reported 280 government troops killed last week, while the allied commands claimed 1,400 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed.

In the fighting in Vietnam Wednesday—

A U.S. armored column protecting bulldozers ripping through enemy base camps 25 miles northwest of Saigon ran into 100 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops. U.S. fighter-bombers, helicopter gunships and artillery pounded the enemy while the American ground forces held back to keep casualties down.

The U.S. Command said six Americans were wounded, one armored personnel carrier was destroyed and two bulldozers were damaged. Enemy losses were not known.

A U.S. bulldozer operation has been under way in the region since April 1 to clear the Boi Loi woods so the enemy cannot use them for hideouts and storage areas. Seven American and more than 60 enemy troops have been reported killed, about 100 Americans have been wounded, and numerous bulldozers, tanks and armored personnel carriers have been knocked out. The area is thick with mines and booby traps.

The South Vietnamese suffered their heaviest losses Wednesday—17 killed and 12 wounded—in a battle east of the U Minh forest, about 125 miles southwest of Saigon. But Saigon reported 40 of the enemy killed with the help of air and artillery strikes.

In the northern part of the U Minh, other South Vietnamese infantrymen killed 11 enemy soldiers while only four of their own men were wounded, field reports said.

Twenty-eight North Vietnamese troops were reported killed in four clashes with South Vietnamese on the mountain slopes around the northern end of the A Shau valley, one of the major enemy supply and base areas in the northern provinces.

Field reports said five South Vietnamese were killed and 31 wounded in the action near the Laotian border about 375 miles north of Saigon.

The U.S. Command said a UH1 helicopter was shot down on the eastern edge of the valley Sunday, and the four crewmen are missing.

Magistrate Court

Albert E. Chidester, 19, was bound over to Pettis County Circuit Court after a preliminary hearing in Magistrate Court Thursday.

Chidester is charged with jail breaking on Sept. 9, 1970. He was arrested June 1 by Sedalia police after allegedly selling an LSD tablet to another youth.

After his escape from Pettis County jail he was re-arrested in March by FBI agents and state troopers in Las Vegas, N.M. and brought back to the county jail.

His bond remains at $20,000.

Ralph Toliver, 19, 223 East Saline, and Jack Cooper, 1206 East Broadway, were bound over to Pettis County Circuit Court after a preliminary hearing in Pettis County Magistrate Court Thursday.

The two men are separately charged with molesting a minor, reportedly a nine-year-old girl, on May 6.

Their bonds remain at $1,500 each. The men are being held in Pettis County jail.

Ronald L. Paxton, 802 East Ninth, was bound over to Pettis County Circuit Court after a preliminary hearing in Magistrate Court Thursday.

He is charged with issuing a forged check. The charge stems from a Feb. 12 incident when Paxton allegedly wrote a $75 check in the name of Wayne Booth and cashed it at Leonard's 66 service station. Paxton is free on a $1,000 bond.

Police Report

Police Chief William Miller said Thursday he had received notification from Dallas, Tex., that a 1970 Ford Thunderbird stolen from the Bill Greer Motors lot Sept. 18, 1970, had been recovered.

Miller said he received the information from Det. Earl Sawyer of the Dallas police department. Sawyer apparently reported that a car theft ring was suspected as being involved. Miller said the FBI had been notified since the vehicle was taken across state lines.

Johnny Lee Vestal, 1207 East 11th, reported to police that stereo tapes worth $43 were stolen from his car while he was attending classes at Smith-Cotton High School Wednesday morning.

According to Vestal, the tapes were discovered missing when he came out to the car during the lunch hour.

Police said there was no sign of forced entry to the car, which had been locked.

In Dollar Woes

Tight Money No Answer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's top banker has ruled out a return to tight money at home as the way to boost the value of the beleaguered dollar overseas.

Raising interest rates to cure the dollar's weakened international position "would not meet our lasting needs at home or abroad," Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns said Wednesday.

Burns' statement closely paralleled thinking of Nixon administration economists who say economic expansion in the United States should not be sacrificed because of the recent dollar crisis.

But Burns' assertion carries more weight because the independent central bank he heads is responsible for the flow of money and credit into the economy.

The recent dollar crisis triggered some speculation the board would tighten the money supply, thus boosting interest rates and eliminating one of the main reasons for the dollar's erosion in Europe.

In recent months, the board has followed a sharply expansive monetary policy, driving down record-high interest rates dramatically. Nixon's economic recovery plans depend heavily on the central bank's treatment of the money supply.

Burns said a tough anti-inflation policy stands at the top of his list of ways to help the dollar internationally.

"The overriding need is to restore price stability even as the present slack in our economy is taken up," he said. "I believe, with growing conviction, that a cogent incomes policy is a necessary part of the effort to restore price stability."

An "incomes policy" is economic jargon for all forms of direct government action to hold down wage and price increases. Nixon has edged closer to such a policy, but has not gone nearly as far as Burns wants. Burns, for instance, wants the President to establish a wage-and-price-review board but Nixon has rejected the idea.

Burns broke an official silence on the monetary crisis in his closed-door testimony before the Senate Banking Committee. Copies of his statement were released by the board.

citizens' organization, and is composed of 185 conservation clubs in Missouri with approximately 22,000 members, making it the largest conservation group in the state. The Sedalia Rod and Gun Club is one of the members of the federation. Individuals who pay $10 and or more become sustaining members of the Conservation Federation of Missouri which is affiliated to the National Wildlife Federation, the largest citizens' conservation group in the world.

The Conservation Federation publishes a bimonthly "Missouri Wildlife," and a bimonthly newsletter.

The federation receives no state or federal funds and is financed through affiliation fees from member clubs at the rate of 50 cents per club member. The major source of income is sustaining membership fees.

The federation conducts annual leadership training conferences to disseminate information to local club officers and to pool their knowledge and experiences to the common good of sportsmen and conservationists in Missouri.

One of the most important functions of the federation is to inform the public of legislation affecting conservation programs. Among the several laws strongly supported by the federation is the first sound water pollution law in the state.

According to Ed Stegner, executive secretary of the federation, there are approximately 100 bills pending in the state Legislature that are directly or indirectly related to conservation.

Dr. Luebbert said he is gratified to see that the strip mine reclamation bill was signed into law this session. The bill was drafted by the Conservation Federation.

Asked what changes he gave scenic rivers legislation, Dr. Luebbert said, "I don't think we'll ever get anything fully acceptable to landowners." He pointed out that the stiff opposition to the original bill was due "99 per cent to misunderstanding on the part of landowners" and the rest to "a little anxiety and over-enthusiasm on the part of sportsmen."

Dr. Luebbert said that "the greatest emphasis" of the federation during his term will be the implementation of the Leopold Report, the result of an independent study of Missouri's natural resources funded by the Edward K. Love Conservation Foundation of St. Louis. The report of the study conducted by three out-of-state professors, provides an up-to-date appraisal of Missouri's conservation program and offers suggestions for improvement.

Dr. Luebbert pointed out that Missouri has one of the best conservation programs in the United States. The state Department of Conservation "has been used as a model for the entire nation," he said. The changing of the department to its present non-partisan status was largely due to the efforts of the Conservation Federation in the 1930s, he pointed out.

He recalled an impression he gathered when he attended the recent National Wildlife Conference in Portland, Ore. "After reviewing conservation programs of several states larger than Missouri I realized how good a system we had," he said.

Community Impact Study Is Discussed at Meeting

(Democrat-Capital Service)

WARRENSBURG — It was announced at the regular meeting of the Show-Me Regional Planning Commission here Wednesday that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is conducting a study in the area to test the economic effects of the proposed Safeguard missile sites in nearby communities.

Robert Tackett, presiding judge of the Johnson County Court, said the community impact study would measure almost every aspect of community services such as schools, sewage and hospital facilities. "Completion of this study will probably allow certain communities, which will be near some of the sites, to be eligible for federal funds," Tackett said.

He reported that the Corps had not said how much the study would cost nor how long it would take to complete. "All I know is that it is financed strictly by federal funds, with no local or state funds going into it," Tackett said.

One of the major things which will be considered, according to Tackett, is whether some of the smaller communities near the missile sites have adequate water supplies.

"For instance, the community of Hughesville has applied for a $220,000 federal grant to rebuild and modernize its sewage treatment facilities. Their request takes in the laying of new sewers, building of connecting lines and overall improvement of their sewage processing facilities," Tackett said.

He said that the Commission reviewed Hughesville's request at its meeting, but funding has not been arranged as yet. "Because of the possible effects of the Safeguard site, they have a very good chance of receiving the federal grant," Tackett said.

Tackett also said that the Law Enforcement Systems Council of the State Department of Community Affairs has approved, effective July 1, setting up a Show-Me Region Law Enforcement Council. "When we received word about the approval, we appointed several area people to it," he said.

Appointed from Sedalia were Mayor Jerry Jones, Police Chief William Miller, Sheriff Emmet Fairfax and Presiding Judge of the County Court Jim Green. Also appointed were the police chief of Smithton and the mayor of LaMonte.

"An organizational meeting for the council will be held in Warrensburg next Wednesday," Tackett said. He said the council will select a chairman and after July will be responsible for obtaining state funds for law enforcement in the region. "The council will also set guidelines for law enforcement in the region," he said.

Salant Voices Opinion

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Richard Salant, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System News, said here Wednesday that disagreement between the government and news media on how news should be presented can be taken too seriously.

Salant, who is in Kansas City to speak to a civic club Thursday, said that tension is the same thing that's been going on since George Washington.

He said it is not new or dangerous unless government officials start threatening to revoke licenses of television stations because they don't like their news handling.

"We're more vulnerable than print media," he said, because of FCC licensing.

Salant, who supervised the controversial and award-winning special, "The Selling of the Pentagon," indicated he believed a lot of interpretation on how news is presented boils down to personal opinion.

"Any time a guy (the news subject) thinks you took just the right thing out and put the right thing in—then you've done a bad job," Salant said.

Salant heads the domestic and international news service of CBS News. He is responsible for the Walter Cronkite News, 60-Minutes and other news specials.

Salant said CBS will make a test case out of its refusal to hand over unused film from a news program about the Black Panthers. Federal agents subpoenaed tapes and unused film but Salant said, "we have respectfully" declined to give up the film because "there are fundamental principles involved."

Salant said so far there's been no intimidation but said he agreed with Walter Cronkite that there was indication on the part of the Nixon administration of "a grand conspiracy" to destroy the "credibility of the press."

He noted that since the first speech and strong replies to it by persons such as Cronkite, that Agnew had not again mentioned television licensing.

Tipton Trash Pickup

Under the leadership of their biology teacher, Donald Zumsteg, at left, 21 students of Tipton High School spent Monday and Tuesday afternoons picking up empty cans and other litter along highways in and around Tipton. Stopping to pick up the cans are Cindy Norman, center, and Tina Potts, both

Livestock Measure OK

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A livestock brand registration law was passed by the Missouri Senate Wednesday and sent back to the House for action on Senate changes.

Sen. Ike Skelton, D-Lexington, Senate sponsor, said the bill is aimed at the increasing amount of livestock rustling—now performed by midnight truck raids.

He said the bill has the endorsement of the Missouri Sheriffs' Association and leading farm organizations.

Sen. Noel Cox, R-Ozark, who operates a livestock auction market, got the Senate to approve an amendment eliminating any liability on livestock or slaughterhouse operators if they make a mistake on the brand records they would be required to keep.

Under the bill, a livestock owner could have his own brand registered with the commissioner of agriculture for $15 and would have to pay a yearly fee of $10 to keep the brand alive.

The commissioner would publish lists of the brands and send them to county recorders for handy reference.

Also sent back to the House with Senate changes was a bill to set up a casualty insurance guaranty fund, designed to protect policyholders from losses if companies go broke.

Other companies would pick up the losses and get a credit on their premium taxes for the amounts they paid out.

Sent to the governor were bills to:

Revamp the state savings and loan code so state associations would be on the same basis as federal associations.

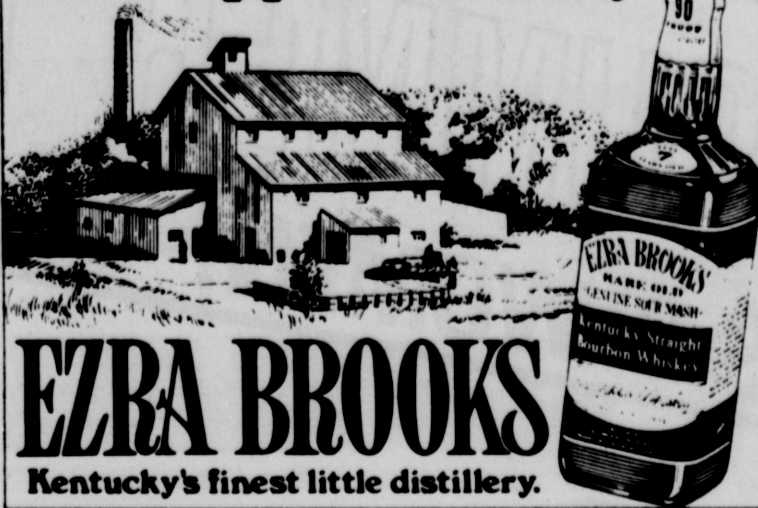

Regulate insurance holding companies under the Division of Insurance.

Koster to Brigadier General

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Military Writer

represents the former West Washington lawyer Edward Point superintendent along with Bennett Williams.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army broke Samuel W. Koster to brigadier general "to mollify those segments of society who feel you can't convict lieutenants and let the generals go free," his attorney charges.

"Apparently they were willing to sacrifice one general," Brendan V. Sullivan said in accusing the Army of "acting on the political exigencies of the moment."

Part of the public outcry following the conviction last month of Lt. William L. Calley Jr., involved charges the Army was making him the scapegoat for the My Lai massacre while letting higher-ranking officers escape punishment.

Calley, so far the only man convicted in the case, is appealing a life sentence for the murder of 22 Vietnamese civilians. Twenty-five officers and enlisted men originally were charged either with crimes at My Lai or with covering up the incident.

Army Secretary Stanley R. Resor Wednesday ordered the 51-year-old Koster demoted from major general, censured and stripped of his Distinguished Service Medal for not thoroughly investigating the My Lai incident while Americal Division commander in March 1968.

Koster's assistant at the time, Brig. Gen. George H. Young Jr., 50, also was censured and his DSM revoked. But Resor allowed him to retain his rank against the recommendation of Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Army chief of staff.

In an interview, Sullivan said Koster, currently assigned to Ft. Meade, Md., "is not going to retire at this time" and may fight Resor's action in the federal courts. There is no avenue of appeal in the military for this form of nonjudicial punishment.

The Army previously had dismissed criminal charges accusing the two generals of covering up the My Lai incident.

"It is our opinion the Army has acted wrongly in this situation in that it acquitted Koster on one hand, then turned around and convicted him on the other," said Sullivan who

Lightning Strike Control Predicted

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A leading forestry official says the government believes it now can reduce the number of lightning strikes by two-thirds, thus substantially lowering the number of forest fires.

Dr. R. Keith Arnold, deputy chief for research of the U.S. Forest Service, said in an interview Tuesday that large-scale pilot projects in lightning suppression are scheduled this summer.

Arnold said the method to be used is the overseeding of lightning clouds, which the service has found to be successful in extensive tests.

Great Britain Is Seeking Power In Common Market Position

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Its empire gone, its influence declining, Britain hopes to win new prosperity and power by joining Europe's Common Market.

And the Common Market, by opening its doors to four newcomers, could transform West Europe into the most important trading area in the world. It would band together 250 million people of 10 highly developed nations into a single producing and consuming unit.

The industrial significance of this states out of some figures:

In 1969 the United States produced 37 per cent of the world's passenger cars. The Common Market countries plus Britain produced 39 per cent. America's share of crude steel output that year was 23 per cent, or 1 per cent less than the production of the Common Market plus Britain.

Individually, countries like Britain or France cannot compete effectively against bigger rivals in today's world of advanced technology. For West Europeans to match American or Soviet efforts they must pool their resources.

The six members of the Common Market have started this. Now there is a prospect of enlarging that process by taking in four more states—Britain, Norway, Denmark and Ireland.

Such a development raises the vision of a community humming with activity, casting ancient jealousies aside. In time, if all goes well, a distinctive West European political voice will be heard rivaling the authority of the United States and the Soviet Union in world affairs. With West Europe concerting its foreign policies a special defense identity also would be possible. For the statesmen of allied Europe are not all that happy at the muffled dialogue they know is going on between Washington and Moscow on such issues of strategy as the limitation of nuclear arms.

That is the promise. To assess its prospects of fulfillment a little bit of history is needed. Here are answers to some key questions:

Who belongs to the Common Market now?

There are six members. France with 50 million people, Italy with 53 million, West Germany with 61 million, and the three Benelux countries—Belgium - Netherlands - Luxembourg—with 23 million.

What exactly is it? "Common Market" is the popular name given to the group with the official title of European Economic Community. This consists of three related bodies:

—The European Coal and Steel Community, which brought the vital coal and steel industries of the six countries together.

—The European Atomic Energy Community, which pooled the members' civil nuclear power resources.

—The European Economic Community, which set up a customs union and a basis for wider cooperation in trade, money, industry and social matters.

Why was the Common Market formed?

The aftermath of World War II brought the long-feuding nation-states of Europe a double challenge. One, political and military, came from the threat of expanding Soviet-led communism. It was met by forming the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, in which the six were hard-core members.

The other challenge, economic, came from the need to mend the ravages of war and to fit Europe for scientific revolution. This was done initially with American help. Then the French and Benelux people resolved to come to terms with their old German and Italian enemies. So the community idea emerged.

Did anyone stop the British from joining?

The British chose to stay out. Proud of their island tradition, still ambitious for a world role, Britons in general wanted to shun Continental entanglements. Instead they preferred to nurse what they took to be their special relationship with the United States.

British leaders reckoned, mistakenly, they would be able to keep things that way and in any case they would see the community system collapsing under the pressure of old German-French quarreling.

How has the Common Market worked?

The six have torn down most barriers, like tariffs or customs duty, holding up trade between themselves. Thus French cars can be sold without duty in partner-states. Dutch radios, or West German machines, or Belgian or Italian textiles, can be bought without duty in other member countries. This has made all concerned somewhat more prosperous.

The Common Market at the same time erected a single, quite low tariff on imports from most outside countries. As a result, since 1958, its trade with the rest of the world has gone up 25 per cent.

The community has done many other things. Workers and money can move as freely as goods among member states. Transportation and power policies have been unified. A common legal and commercial code will allow companies to ignore frontiers. There is a plan for a single money system with one currency.

If Britain stands to gain from joining the market who stands to lose?

There are endless arguments about this among Britons. Most countries of the developing Commonwealth—in Asia, Africa, the Caribbean—were colonized originally by the British for their resources and for their marketing potential. Therefore they geared their output to British needs and they built their home economies to British standards. Now, suddenly, they face the prospect of a fundamental switch.

Will the United States be affected?

American wheat, corn, fruit will be less easily marketable in Britain, Norway, Denmark, Ireland. It will be much harder to sell American manufactured goods throughout the protected territories of an enlarged Common Market because of the external tariff. And the great factories and plants of the Europeans, geared for mass production, should in time become more efficient, turning out cheaper goods. These could squeeze American products out of some markets. Thus competition would become progressively fiercer.

Would a bigger Common Market spur the movement toward a United States of Europe?

The key members—France, Britain, Germany—are still pretty coy about this. Neither French or British leaders would contemplate at this time any surrender of freedom to make their own political decisions. Nor would their respective parliaments accept this. Yet, 10 important countries working together daily on bread-and-butter issues, would have to nerge much of their sovereignty.

Entrant Studying Medicine

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Blue-eyed beauty Shirley Kittleston, Minnesota's entry in the Miss USA pageant, is studying veterinary medicine but don't call her a "horse doctor."

"That's an image we vets have to shed," said Shirley. "We study the same books as prospective M.D.'s, but then it gets tougher — we have to worry about all animals while they cover just the two-legged ones."

The 23-year-old Miss Kittleston, a sixth year veterinary medicine student at Iowa State University, has a 36-24-36 figure.

Miss Minnesota began riding at age 5 and her favorite fella in the world is a Gold American saddlebred named Miracle Mac. "If you're talking men," she said, "I guess you'd say I play the field. But, the man I marry must love animals and agree to allow me to continue practicing my profession."

Even if Miss Minnesota is crowned Miss USA Saturday night, earning an entry into July's Miss Universe contest, "I'll still become a vet—not a horse doctor—a vet."

Ten girls were honored in the swim suit competition Wednesday night.

They included Miss Iowa, Cindy Helmers of Sibley, Iowa, and Miss Missouri, Nancy Rich of Springfield, Mo.

Syphilis Germs Expire Outside Human Organism

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Is it possible to contract syphilis without sex? I have had many of the listed symptoms but the only place I could have gotten them would be a contaminated glass or something of that nature. Each symptom has been in the correct chronological order for the disease progression but it could easily be coincidence. I have been worrying about this for the past seven months. I have never had any type of sex with anyone.

Dear Reader — Yes, it is possible to become infected with syphilis without having sexual relations, although it is not very common. The germ that causes the disease can be transmitted in fluid such as saliva. The germ, however, will not live long outside the body.

Amorous kissing with all that entails is one way of transmitting the disease. It is possible under ideal circumstances to transmit it from drinking glasses and bottles. The chances, however, that you have acquired syphilis, if it is true that you have not had any sexual relations with anyone, is relatively remote.

You can find out by having a blood test done through the venereal disease section of either your county or city health office. It would not be necessary for you to give your name. In fact, all such clinics are confidential. For young people, the parents need not know anything about it and the health office does not divulge any information about anyone they see — young or old.

er your county or city health office. It would not be necessary for you to give your name. In fact, all such clinics are confidential. For young people, the parents need not know anything about it and the health office does not divulge any information about anyone they see — young or old.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have a decision to make which is very hard for me. I have a mole on my left cheek that has been there since I was a small girl (I am now 67). It is unsightly and the last few months it has grown some. It is about a half-inch in diameter. My doctor wants to take it off soon. Should I let him or have it taken off by a specialist or should I let it remain? He said he is certain it is not cancerous.

Dear Reader — Any mole any place on the body that begins to change in size or appearance should be removed. The only way to tell if it is cancer or not is to remove it and look at the section under a microscope. This also enables the doctor to tell whether or not all of the tumor has been removed in case it is cancerous. If it is removed, your scar should be almost unnoticeable. It is not a very difficult procedure. You should let your doctor go ahead and do what he has recommended. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Brothers Design Computer

By HOYT HARWELL
Associated Press Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Two medical brothers have figured out a better way to pass the time than reading year-old magazines while waiting to see the doctor. Their idea is for you to spend the time giving your medical history to a computer that later would give the doctor a quick printout on your case.

Drs. Warner and Charles Slack have devised such a computer and are testing it at the University of Alabama in Birmingham.

Before the patient sees a physician, the computer lists questions about his medical history on a small television screen and the patient responds by pressing answer keys on a typewriter keyboard.

Dr. Warner Slack, a physician at Harvard, and Dr. Charles Slack, a psychologist at the university here, say they have found that patients often are more comfortable giving intimate information to a computer than to a physician, because the computer routinely asks the same thing of everyone.

The computer asks questions in lay language but translates the answer for the doctor in medical terms. For instance: "Have you ever had hives bumps?" If the answer is no, the print-out tells the doctor there is "no evidence of urticaria by history."

The computer has 150 questions, but the average patient would answer only 70.

Graduation Activities Planned

Smith-Cotton High School has scheduled graduation activities throughout this week and next. According to Earl Finley, principal, the awards assembly will be held at 8:55 a.m. Friday in the S-C gymnasium; baccalaureate will begin at 2 p.m. Sunday in the gymnasium and candlelight ceremonies will be at 2:25 p.m. Tuesday in the gymnasium. Commencement exercises will be held at 8 p.m. May 28 at the Jennie Jaynes stadium or at the gymnasium if heavy rain exists at that time.

Parisian Flair At Formal

Spring Formal Queen

With the closing of school each year, Sacred Heart's student council sponsors a spring formal. Crowned queen of this formal last Saturday night was Miss Linda Huhman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Huhman, 1628 South Barrett. She was escorted by Dwayne Amos.

"Bastille Day" was the theme of the 1971 Sacred Heart High School Spring Formal which was held in the S-H cafeteria Saturday night. Amidst the Parisian atmosphere Miss Linda Huhman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Huhman, 1628 South Barrett was crowned queen. She was escorted by Dwayne Amos.

Sponsoring the dance was the S-H student council under the direction of James Mergen, president.

Miss Pam Koetting, former spring formal attendant and first runner-up in the Miss Sedalia pageant, crowned Miss Huhman during the ceremonies.

Senior princesses to the queen were Miss Stacy Trotter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Trotter, 1718 West Fourth, escorted by Richard Bahner and Miss JoAnn Simon, daughter of Joe Simon, Route 1, escorted by James Mergen.

Other attendants were junior, Miss Jean Eschbacher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Eschbacher, 1017 West Seventh, escorted by Danny Gwinn; sophomore, Miss Susan Marino, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Marino, 408 West Fourth, escorted by Roger Schuber; and freshman, Miss Carol Schuster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schuster, 801 East Seventh, escorted by Tony Lock.

The Chains of Soul of Sedalia provided live music for the dance. Sister Eileen is sponsor of the student council.

Orientation Days Planned For Mizzou

(Democrat-Capital Service)

COLUMBIA — The office of student life at the University of Missouri-Columbia has developed a new orientation program for graduating high school seniors and their parents.

The new program, termed "Summer Welcome '71," consists of 15 separate two-day orientation sessions between June 20 and July 16. Special emphasis is being made this year to invite parents to attend the sessions with their son or daughter.

Daytime tours and programs have been developed for the parents and UMC will provide overnight accommodations in residence halls for the prospective students and their parents.

The student portion of the program is designed to acquaint new students with the campus, allow them to register for their academic program and provide the opportunity to meet other new students, upperclassmen and faculty members.

Activities will include guided tours of the UMC campus, division orientation meetings, discussion of advance placement, discussions of fraternities and sororities, religious centers, the honors college, student organizations, government and activities.

Room and meal charges for the sessions have been reduced to $8 per person from last year's $14 per person.

Schedules for the 15 sessions are (1) June 20-21; (2) June 21-22; (3) June 23-24; (4) June 24-25; (5) June 27-28; (6) June 28-29; (7) June 30-July 1; (8) July 1-2; (9) July 6-7; (10) July 7-8; (11) July 8-9; (12) July 11-12; (13) July 12-13; (14) July 14-15 and (15) July 15-16.

Arts and Science, Education and Engineering will offer orientation programs during all 15 sessions. Home Economics will participate in sessions 1-8; Nursing in sessions 2, 3 and 6; Forestry in sessions 2, 6 and 9 and Parks and Recreation in session 11. Business and Public Administration will offer orientation programs to transfer students only in sessions 13, 14 and 15.

Additional information about the program can be obtained by writing the Office of Student Life, 100 Read Hall, University of Missouri-Columbia, Mo. 65201.

Highest In Class

Valedictorian for the 1970-71 graduating class of Green Ridge R-VIII High School is Miss Cathy Berry, left, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Berry, Green Ridge. Salutatorian is Miss Connie Ream, right, daughter of Mrs. Julian Ream, Green Ridge. Commencement exercises will be held at 8 p.m. Friday in the school auditorium, with George Miller, Sedalia attorney, as guest speaker.

Bestow Student Awards

State Fair Community College recently chose 19 students for the 1970-71 Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges award.

A committee of faculty and administrators chose the students on the basis of scholarship, citizenship, participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities.

These 19 students have participated in activities including student government, State Fair Singers, cheerleading, basketball, newspaper, yearbook staff, and Deca Club.

Chosen for the honor are Carolyn Akeman, Linda Bauer, Barbara Binder, Charles Bohon, Linda Boyd, Nardica Buckner, Kirk Davis, Theresa Distler, Gary Dodd, Nancy Eckhoff, Dorothy England, Annetta Grainger, Stuart Gressley, Keith Hankins, Patrice Hewett, Wally McCown, Sharon Patterson, Nancy Richwine and Connie Smith.

The names and achievements of these students will be published in the 1970-71 "Who's Who in American Junior Colleges," in August.

Valedictorian Will Receive Special Award

Janie Eichholz, valedictorian of the graduating class at Smithton High School, has been given the Annual Award of The Reader's Digest Association for students who by their successful school work give promise of attaining leadership in the community, it was announced recently by Ben Walden, principal.

Miss Eichholz will receive an honorary one-year subscription to The Reader's Digest in any one of its 13 language-editions, and a personal certificate from the Editors "in recognition of past accomplishments and in anticipation of unusual achievement to come."

The Reader's Digest association is presenting these awards in senior high schools throughout the United States to the highest honor student of the graduating class.

The award to Miss Eichholz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Eichholz, Smithton, was made possible through the cooperation of Mr. Walden and his teaching staff. They selected Miss Eichholz to receive the award, designed to stimulate scholarship, citizenship, and continued contact with good reading after graduation.

Student Reports

Charles Ernest Leiter, son of Mrs. Mildred Leiter, Route 2, will receive his Bachelor of Science degree in physics and mathematics at the May 30 commencement exercises at Upper Iowa College, Fayette, Iowa.

LINCOLN — Miss Wanda Arlene Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wade David Hill, Lincoln, has been awarded the MFA Scholarship for Benton County R-II High School.

The $200 scholarship was donated by the Lincoln MFA Exchange, Lincoln MFA Implement Co. and the MFA Foundation.

Miss Hill plans to attend Central Missouri State College in the fall.

LBJ Library Operating Costs Skyrocket

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Lyndon Baines Johnson Library, which dwarfs in concept and size all other presidential libraries, will cost the federal government four times more to operate than the figure given to the Congress that authorized the project.

Budget records and interviews with federal officials disclosed the quadrupled annual costs as President Nixon, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and hundreds of veterans from Johnson's Great Society prepared to head for Saturday's dedication of the library on the University of Texas campus.

At that time, the General Services Administration will formally take over the library's operation, maintenance and protection, adding these expenses to the National Archives' budget for collating the 31 million documents and other materials—including 500,000 still photographs—left from Johnson's six years as president.

The government's total annual operating cost for the library will exceed $850,000, records and interviews disclosed, compared with an estimate of $190,000 given to Congress in 1965 when it passed authorizing legislation.

The eight-story library is part of a campus complex constructed by the University of Texas under a single contract for a total cost of $18.6 million.

Archives officials said no federal funds were used in the library's construction. However, university officials said the school's share was $15.8 million with the rest coming from the federal treasury; a $2.6 million grant plus $270,000 in GSA funds.

Records show the Office of Education awarded the $2.6

million grant a year before Johnson left office to help the university construct what was then described as the "East Campus Library and Research Building."

Office of Education officials say the grant was for a three-story building adjacent to the presidential library. This building, known formally as Sid Richardson Hall, houses the Lyndon Baines Johnson School of Public Affairs.

Because a single construction contract was let for both the library and Richardson Hall, university officials said there is no way of separating costs for each building. However, an Office of Education spokesman said the $2.6 million grant "was not made for the archives. It was to be used for academic purposes only."

"No politics were involved," the official insisted. "Just because he was in the White House didn't make a bit of difference."

Records show the National Archives fiscal 1971 allocation of $670,000 for the Johnson Library was more than double what it spent on any of the other libraries, and far outstripped original estimates.

Asked what caused the increase, Asst. Archivist Daniel J. Reed, who heads the Office of Presidential Libraries, replied, "I don't know. Inflation, federal salary increases, I guess."

But Archivist James B. Rhoads said in an interview the early estimate did not take into account the scope of the Johnsonian papers.

"Back in 1965 no one had a realistic view of just how massive the collection would be," he said. "They knew it would be large, but they didn't know how large."

"The best bench mark we had in 1965 was what the Roosevelt, Eisenhower and Truman libraries were costing us, and $190,000 would have been somewhat more than liberal at that time."

So extensive are the Johnson papers that the Archives spent more than $1.5 million in fiscal years 1969 through 1971 just sorting them for placement in the library.

This work is continuing under a $550,000 appropriation for fiscal 1972 and the Archives plans to spend the same amount in fiscal 1973 to support a staff of 38, Reed said.

The $550,000 does not include costs of maintaining, protecting and operating the library building itself, all functions to be performed by the GSA's Public Buildings Service at a cost of $3.02 a square foot, or $302,000 annually, a GSA spokesman said.

Preliminary planning for the library began in 1964, and construction started while Johnson was still in the White House.

Its first and second floors are devoted to public exhibits of the Johnson era, ranging from his daughters' wedding dresses to political cartoons dating to the 1930s.

The third through seventh floors, to be restricted to scholars and researchers, contain papers and memorabilia collected by the Johnsons since he entered federal service in 1935 as director of the National Youth Administration's operations in Texas.

The eighth floor contains a duplicate of Johnson's White House office. Library Director Harry Middleton said Johnson plans to work there part of the time, particularly when going over papers in the library.

Both the former president and Mrs. Johnson were active in planning and gathering materials for the library. One Johnson aide recalled that during the early stages, "The President simply said to me, 'I want to have the best presidential library in the world.'"

Tragic Death Diffused SCLC's Purpose

ATLANTA, Ga., (AP) — Three years after the death of its charismatic organizer, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., the Southern Christian Leadership Conference has changed its focus and diffused its leadership and programs.

As the conference's apostle of nonviolence, King was to many the institution itself.

When he was assassinated in April 1968, the loosely knit organization of numerous church affiliates without formal rank-and-file membership was forced to reshape itself.

The changes began soon. Attention shifted from the mass marches and demonstrations for basic human rights to less dramatic programs like housing projects and better jobs—work one SCLC official calls the "nitty gritty" of the civil rights effort.

SCLC has worked to register Negro voters and get jobs and help for blacks and other poor. It has adopted a militant stance against the war.

Sidney Cooks, named Wednesday to the organization's top administrative post of executive director, said he expects SCLC to step up its activities next year in voter registration and voter education.

Cooks said a primary target will be those persons between 18 and 21 years old who are now eligible to vote in federal elections. He said SCLC will not depart from its position of not recommending or endorsing candidates but will support or oppose positions that candidates take.

Cooks, 28, a Uniontown, Ala., native who joined SCLC as a field organizer in 1965, served as director of student affairs, administrative assistant to the president and director of public relations before being named to assume the duties previously performed by the Rev. Andrew Young.

Young, whose title was executive vice president, resigned from the SCLC last summer to make an unsuccessful race for Congress.

Cooks spoke of SCLC's successful efforts to help organize 500 steel workers in a Georgetown, S.C. plant. "It didn't make a lot of news, but that's one of the things we get into," he said.

SCLC played a role in planning the recent antiwar demonstrations in Washington. Its leaders said this was part of a plan which the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, now head of SCLC, calls "a new militancy through which we can speak to youth."

SCLC recently led marches on Wall Street to emphasize their call to government and business to help cure unemployment among the poor.

At Wednesday's news conference announcing Cooks' appointment Abernathy said the SCLC faces a greater challenge now than ever before to "prove that nonviolence is meaningful and relevant."

Money for SCLC always is a problem—as it was when King was alive. Most of the money comes from mail appeals. Some funds come from foundations for programs like voter education, sometimes from labor unions, churches and staff speaking engagements.

Allen Pearson, director of the National Severe Storms Forecast center, after viewing damage by air of Tuesday night's damage from twisters in northeast Kansas and northwest Missouri, estimated Wednesday that replacement cost of damaged structures would total $500,000 for the three counties affected by the storm.

Turbulent Weather Reported

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Turbulent weather with a number of tornado cloud sightings were reported in the northeastern portion of Kansas Wednesday night. It was the second consecutive night of severe weather in the area.

Strong winds, with gusts reaching 70 miles an hour, buffeted the Topeka area and funnel clouds were spotted from Junction City eastward down the Kansas River basin to Kansas City. Apparently none caused severe damage.

Some tree damage was reported locally from the northern parts of Topeka eastward through Douglas and southern Jefferson counties but preliminary reports indicated serious damage was very limited.

CONFUSED?

Sometimes it is difficult to find your way through all the claims and counter-claims of advertising media.

But there is one no-nonsense report that tells it exactly like it is—not like we (or anyone else) dreams it to be.

That's the report of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, an advertiser controlled circulation fact-finding and fact-reporting organization.

Next time you question a circulation claim, just ask to see proof—the ABC report.

And that's a fact, for sure.

Russian, Canadian Accord

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau have signed an agreement calling for the Soviet and Canadian governments to make urgent contact if necessary to maintain peace.

The protocol signed Wednesday also provides for regular consultation between the foreign minister of the two nations to discuss "important international problems of mutual interest."

Trudeau appeared for the signing ceremony at the government guest house outside Moscow and the official reception afterward dressed in a yellow striped shirt and brown suit with a red rose in his button hole. Kosygin wore a dark suit and conservative, small-patterned tie.

Tass reported that Trudeau, in a toast at the reception, said "the most earnest desire of the Canadian people is the desire to live in peace and accord with all peoples, particularly with the two great powers which are our neighbors—the Soviet Union and the United States."

Trudeau arrived in Moscow on Monday for an 11-day official visit and tour.

Trudeau met today with President Nikolai V. Podgorny in the Kremlin to discuss further cooperation between their two governments. Earlier in the day, the prime minister toured the Kremlin's museums with his wife.

Show Business Runs in the Family

By GENE HANDSAKER
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Richard D. Zanuck, talking for the first time about his "resignation" as president of 20th Century-Fox, says it was "a firing... an execution"—engineered by his father, Darryl F. Zanuck. Why?

"Continual disputes over how the company should be run. Continual suspicion on his part that I wanted to send him out to pasture."

Lunching on steak in his red-carpeted office at Warner Bros., where he is now senior executive vice president, 36-year-old Dick Zanuck said also:

"His father got him fired through a director's committee which is now 'plucking his feathers'... taking one toenail at a time. He kind of developed a monster. He'll be completely out soon."

—Young Zanuck will sue 20th Century-Fox if the big, troubled movie company doesn't make a financial settlement of his $350,000-a-year contract. "I have a valid contract which they have breached. I've been very badly treated. They've met with my attorney only two times. They've just given the cold ice treatment."

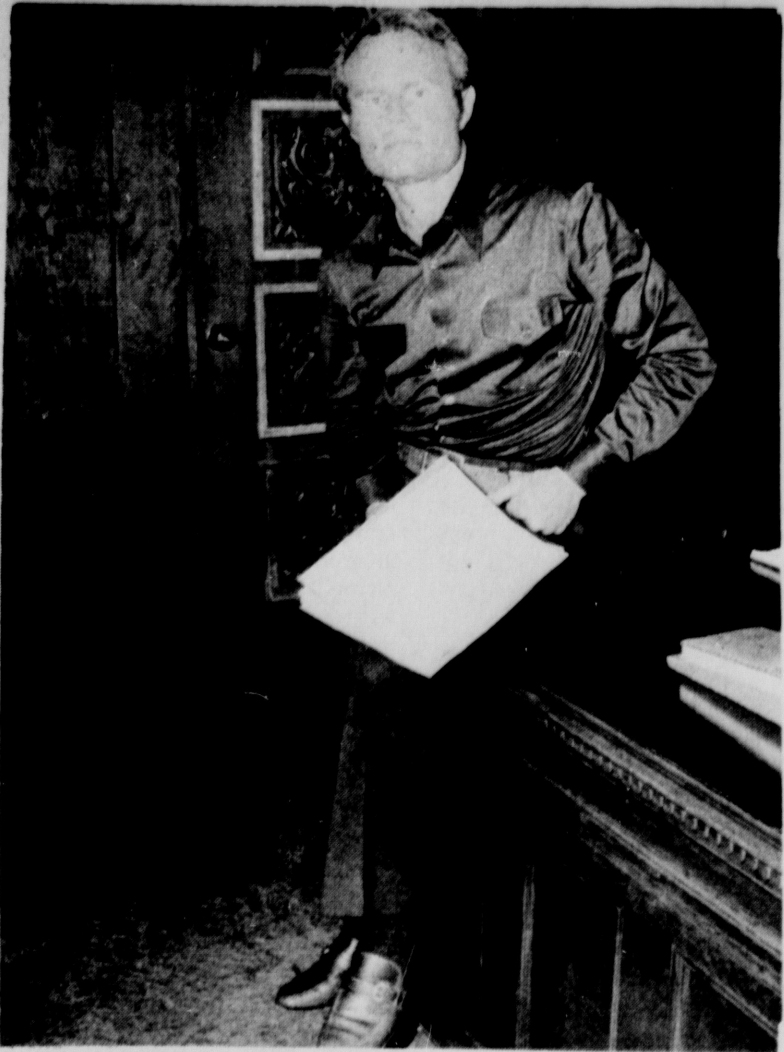

—He would have "worked for nothing" to help restore a company "where I had lifelong friendships, where I was happy and content and thought I was doing a good job. That word 'resigned' is about as misused as any word in the language."

Hollywood was stunned last Dec. 29 when young Zanuck, widely and respectfully addressed as Dick, left in what was called a resignation. Bank lenders and some board members had complained of too few profitable pictures under his leadership.

In two years the company had a more than $100 million loss—$77.3 million in 1970, $25.2 million in 1969.

Darryl Zanuck, 68-year-old founder of 20th Century-Fox, remained as board chairman. On April 7, he surrendered his additional title—chief executive officer—to concentrate on film production. His son said now, "They've been stripping DZ from power since I left."

Like his cigar-smoking, more flamboyant father, Dick Zanuck is short of stature—5-foot-7. Square-faced, tanned, almost painfully serious of manner, he wore brown slacks, a wide leather belt and a maroon sport shirt open at the neck. As

Movie Moves

Richard Zanuck now presides over a Hollywood office as senior executive vice president of Warner Bros. But until December last year he was president of 20th Century-Fox, founded by his father, Darryl Zanuck, who is still board chairman. Richard claims he did not resign from 20th Century, but was fired by his father through a directors' committee. (AP) president at 20th, he had worn suits and ties.

"The feeling is totally different here, very informal," he said. "I like it. It's better for the creative climate."

His job is "practically identical with what I did" at 20th—meeting with writers, producers, directors, agents.

He had said he couldn't talk about what happened at 20th. But now he responded to questions frankly. What happened?

"I think I was used as a scapegoat more than anything. It's ironic. Pictures produced under my auspices received 22 nominations for this year's Academy awards, more than any other studio's. You figure it out. Here I am working for Warner Bros."

"Under my auspices at Fox we produced the biggest money-making picture in the history of motion pictures ('The Sound of Music'). And the third, fourth and fifth most profitable in 20th's history—'Butch Cassidy,' 'Planet of the Apes' and 'Valley of the Dolls.'"

"My record was pretty goddam good. But what studio did well this past year? The whole industry went on its backside in 1970, and there weren't many heroes."

How did he feel about his father's recent surrender of 20th's operating control?

"Despite the way he had treated me—which was abominable—I left rather sad because it meant the family was no longer connected with the company. He is chairman but is no longer running the show."

But isn't Darryl a heavy stockholder in Fox? Dick said his father owns 60,000 shares, his mother Virginia—Darryl's estranged wife—100,000 shares and Dick and his two sisters, 102,000.

But—"There's no sense owning a lot of stock in a company unless you have a measure of control."

Meaning all the Zanucks will dispose of their Fox stock?

"If it gets to the right price, I'd like to see it disposed... I'd rather put it in Kinney, the company I work for."

Kinney National Services, a conglomerate which owns mortuaries, publishing houses, record companies and now Warner Bros., "is a real go-go company," said Dick, "at least five times as big as Fox."

The Dec. 29 directors' meeting in New York was "very short and sweet," Dick said. One of a committee of three directors "read a lengthy report. The conclusion was that David Brown and myself should go, due to losses and what they considered irreconcilable differences between the chief executive officer (Darryl Zanuck) and the president (Dick).

"I didn't consider them irreconcilable—maybe he did. So they voted, Brown and I abstained," Brown, the Fox executive vice president for creative operations, now has a similar post at Warners.

Dick said he didn't protest—the deed was done, it was all signed, sealed and delivered. They could have sent it on a penny postcard.

The fact was that the chief executive officer (Darryl) wanted me out of the company. The 'irreconcilable differences' had gone on for some time, about the manner in which the company should be run...

"I wanted to do what MGM and Warners have done, bring the New York offices here. He didn't think it would work... It would have meant moving real management power out of New York and that would have left him high and dry."

Lockheed Alters Job Figures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lockheed Aircraft Corp. has doubled its estimate of job losses that would follow congressional failure to guarantee $250 million in loans the company needs to complete the Tristar jumbo jet.

In a memo to newsmen, Lockheed put the number of lost jobs at 63,000 double what the Nixon administration and the company have been saying. But it includes a new element: Over-all impact on the national job picture, rather than just on Lockheed and its subcontractors in 35 states.

The company stuck with previous estimates of about 30,000 layoffs in its own plants and those of subcontractors if it fails to win federal backing for $250 million private loans needed to complete the L1011 Tristar and survive huge cost overruns by Rolls-Royce Ltd., bankrupt British maker of Tristar engines.

The Lockheed memo also cited what the company called numerous "partial precedents" for government aid to troubled businesses, including a 1947 loan to Martin aircraft, $75 million in 1967 guarantees to Douglas and last year's guarantees to Penn Central.

As the Lockheed memo circulated Tuesday the administration's loan-guarantee request was described by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., as a grave threat to free enterprise.

Even if Lockheed is forced to cancel the Tristar, Proxmire said in a Washington speech, most if not all discharged Lockheed workers would be able to find jobs with McDonnell-Douglas which is building a competitor for the Tristar—the DC10—only 30 miles from Lockheed's Burbank, Calif., plant.

In a Senate speech, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said the proposal "should be named the Big Business Welfare Act of 1971."

Priorities Changed For Area Reservoir

The much-studied Flat Creek reservoir project appears to have taken on an entirely new complexion, as revealed at a public meeting Tuesday night sponsored by the Army Corps of Engineers.

At the meeting, Col. R. L. Anderson, district engineer of the Kansas City office of the Corps, explained that a reservoir on Flat Creek does not appear economically feasible at this point. Instead, a dam on Spring Fork Creek 5 miles south of Sedalia is being contemplated.

The Corps readily conceded that such a dam would have an almost negligible effect on controlling flooding on Flat Creek, since Spring Fork Creek is only a tributary. Colonel Anderson said the dam would only reduce Flat Creek's flood potential by something like 10 per cent.

We must therefore look elsewhere for benefits from the project, and the Corps lists two others—water supply for Sedalia and recreation.

The Sedalia Board of Public Works entered a statement into the proceedings Tuesday night favoring such a project, since it would enlarge Sedalia's water supply capacity to meet projected future needs.

Although it was not brought out at the meeting, we suspect that the Army's Safeguard ABM complex earmarked for this area is a major factor in the rearranging of priorities on the Flat Creek Reservoir project. Once operational, the ABM installation will require a large amount of cooling water. It is generally conceded that these demands can only be met by enlarging Sedalia's water system.

The recreational aspect of the proposed reservoir is by far the weakest one for its justification. Sedalia already sits on the edge of the most extensively developed water recreation area in Missouri. Additional facilities are not exactly a priority need.

Another factor in the whole matter involving Flat Creek is an additional study of the entire Blackwater-Lamine Basin (which includes Flat Creek) being made concurrently with the Corps study by the federal Soil Conservation Service, Forest Service and Economic Research Service.

In short, Flat Creek promises to be one of the most studied bodies of water in the entire United States. Sedalians will watch with interest the outcome of it all.

Plays Role

Air of Confidence Difficult For Nixon

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Preparing for one of his quite infrequent televised news conferences is a real agony for President Richard Nixon. The ordeal, and it is that, lasts at least a whole day.

BLOSSAT

He suffers some of this same discomfort as he makes ready for his visitors, even when their time with him is to be brief. He has no natural fund of small talk.

Earlier this year, he told aide H. R. (Bob) Haldeman one morning that he didn't want to see one group of men listed on his schedule. They were public officials with a national-minority background. Nixon had not had time to pack his social first-aid kit with appropriate trivial talk. (The visit was called off, only to be reinstated at the last minute and go surprisingly well.)

Things like this are not at all new to Nixon-watchers. He is an egg-walker, treading delicately upon the thin shells. He tries to make it look like a confident plunge, but most of the time it is seen for what it is.

He is intent on taking great care with the words he utters, yet too often what he says sounds careless. His quest for the right phrase may lead him into entangling thickets. Some of his intrusive comments about the controversial Calley case fit this pattern.

It is always said that "no one really knows Richard Nixon." Some men, though, know him well enough to grasp that he is not a broadly confident man and probably never will be.

The great pain of his life is that he chose fields of endeavor — politics and high public office — where displays of confidence are supposed to be worn like a uniform.

So, in the words of one man who views him sympathetically, "Nixon is always trying to project an image different from what he really is." And, sadly, in television's glare he is observed as he tries shakily to suggest confidence.

Against today's vivid backdrop of distrust for men in high places, Richard Nixon's inborn insecurity could prove critical to his prospects for re-election in 1972. Men who look and sound hesitant often are presumed to be lying and concealing. His potential primary opponent, the dovish Rep. Paul McCloskey of California, says he is doing just that.

One party specialist is saying privately that, though McCloskey probably could not unhorse Nixon in any important primary next year, he might here and there do better than anyone now imagines. The reason: He might serve as repository for the votes of the distrustful.

This same expert thinks it entirely possible that Nixon may be beaten in 1972 even if he winds the Vietnam war down to a nonissue and gets the economy back into a really heartening upward spiral.

The President's credibility problem is not the only factor in this judgment, as a later report will bring out. Still, that dilemma is key.

If he should manage real progress on the war and the economy, the President could in fact be in the ironic position of getting big things done while looking and sounding as if he hadn't.

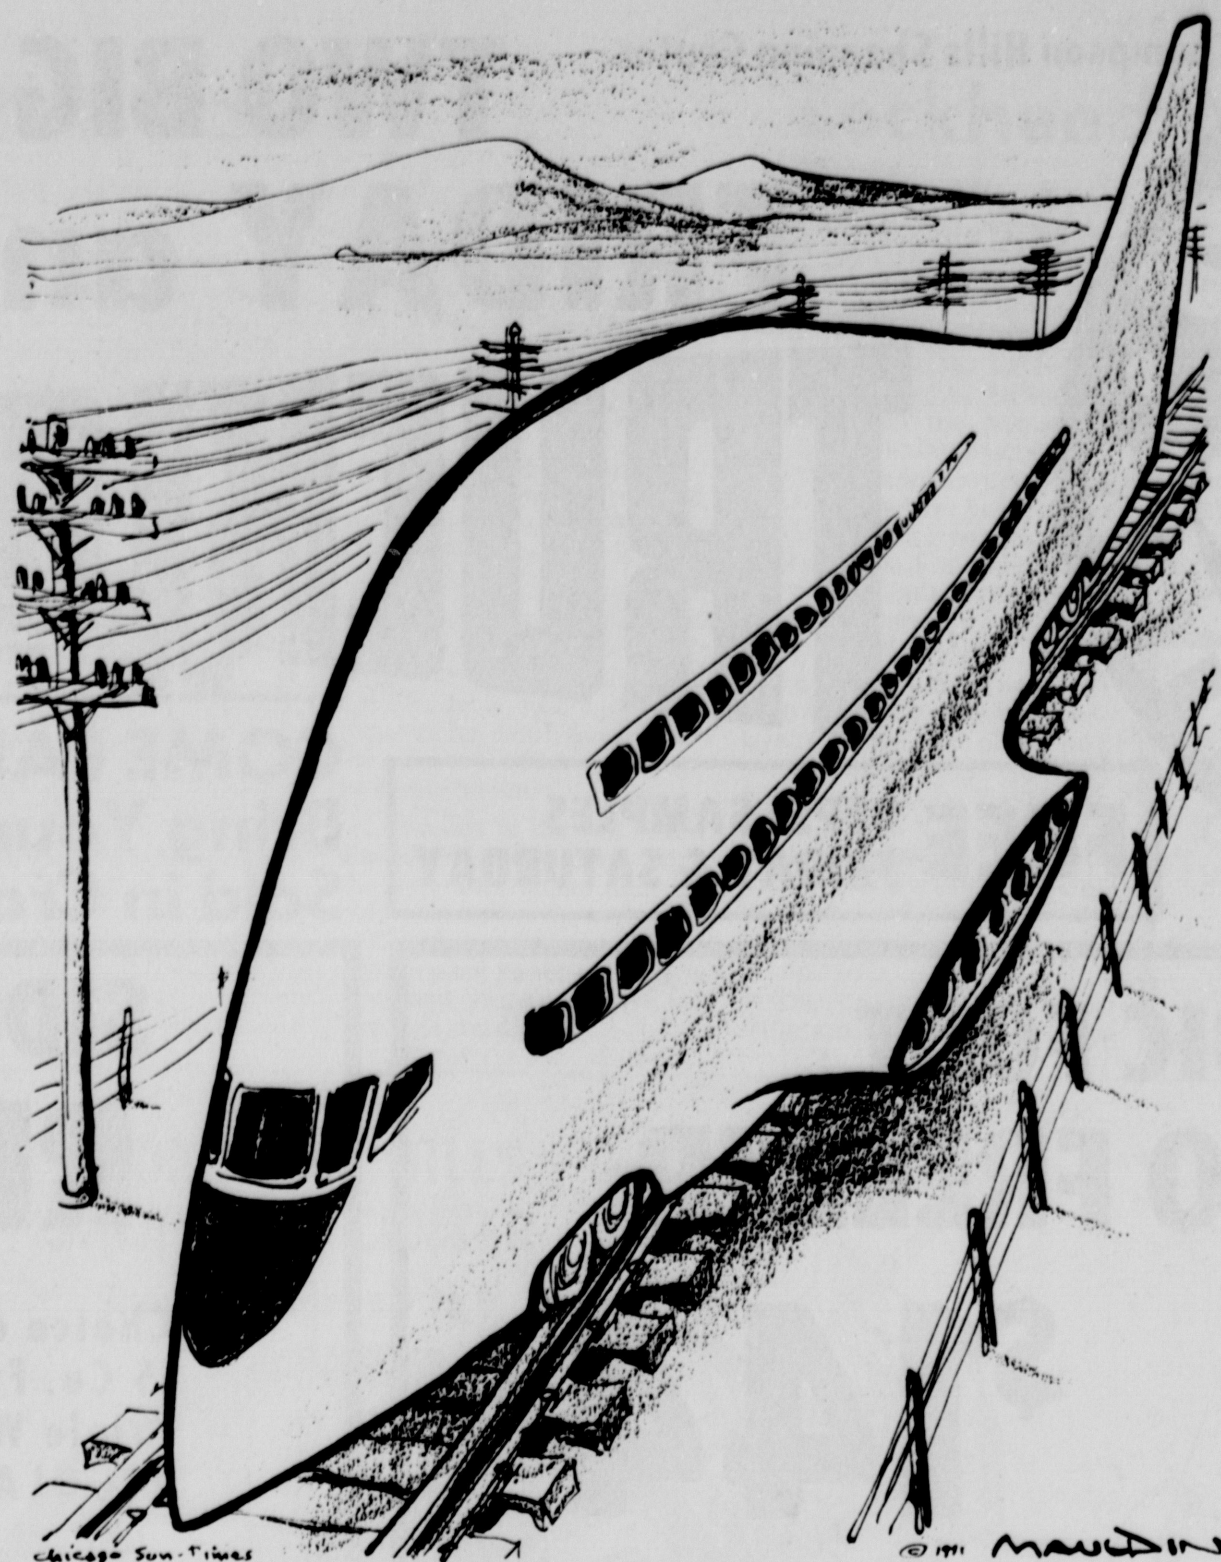

After all, it is Nixon, not any attacking Democrat, who has brought our Vietnam troop levels down to 265,000 from the 543,000 there in 1969.

Beyond doubt he will keep on pulling men out until the force in Vietnam is either quite small, or removed altogether.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The Panama Canal began operation in 1914 as a vital factor in world commerce. The World Almanac notes that during the seven-year period of its construction 240 million cubic yards of earth were excavated at a cost of about $336 millions. Colonel George Goethals, the project's chief engineer, directed a labor force of about 40,000 men.

HOW TO SAVE THE S.S.T. AND REVIVE THE RAILROADS

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Pan American World Airways has made a quiet approach to the Justice Department about the possibility of a merger with TWA. The whole affair has the smell of a backroom deal.

For instance, the approach was made by Herbert Brownell, a top Republican who was attorney general in the Eisenhower administration. He now serves Pan Am as "special counsel" for its merger explorations.

Brownell went over the head of Assistant Attorney General Richard McClaren, whose anti-trust division has jurisdiction over mergers, and made his pitch directly to Attorney General John Mitchell.

Such high-level Republican maneuvering suggests that Pan Am may be attempting to get a secret go-ahead from the Nixon administration.

Although Brownell and TWA Chairman Charles Tillinghast stoutly deny there has been any merger agreement, both confirmed that the two international air giants have held talks. They said no talks are now in progress.

However, Brownell submitted a hush-hush 43-page memorandum to Mitchell entitled "A Pan American-TWA Merger Would Serve the Public Interest."

The document, which my associate Brit Hume has obtained, is laced with language suggesting that both airlines regard a merger as virtually their only chance for survival in a field where they claim the competition has become destructive.

"Steadily increasing competition from foreign airlines and from charter airlines... has left Pan Am and TWA overstrained financially and burdened by the most severe operating losses in the industry," the memo mourns.

"Unless the merger is approved," it says, "charter service must be curtailed if the U.S. flag transatlantic and round-the-world system is to be preserved from ultimate extinction."

If the merger does not go through "and the inevitable drift towards disaster continues with respect to U.S. flag carriers," the memo later asserts, "the country may well be faced with the prospect of keeping alive a mortally stricken industry with the inefficient props of subsidy or government ownership."

Reached at his New York City office, Brownell said Pan Am had "been talking to practically every major domestic airline" but insisted no agreements had been reached.

In an apparent effort to allay any suspicion that Pan Am might be keeping its stockholders in the dark, Brownell hastened to point out that Pan Am President Najeeb Halaby had informed the company's recent annual meeting about vague merger soundings.

Unaware we had a copy of his memo to Mitchell, Brownell at first described it as merely a discussion of the "legality of airline mergers." He called it "a straight legal memo on what must be considered for a big merger to go through."

Pressed, he finally acknowledged that it dealt specifically with TWA. Brownell said, however, that Pan Am's talks with TWA had ended "inconclusively" several months ago.

This was confirmed by TWA's Tillinghast, who described his company's talks with Pan Am as "very preliminary" and said he had no knowledge of Brownell's approach to the Justice Department.

Nader for President? — We reported last March that consumer crusader Ralph Nader's name had turned up in some of the presidential polls, much to the consternation of the serious contenders. In some polls, Nader led all the Democratic regulars. Now Gore Vidal has launched a presidential boom for Nader in Esquire magazine. All this has embarrassed Nader, who fears the presidential speculation might "impede our work." People might get the mistaken idea, he told us, that he is motivated by presidential ambition. "I am not interested at all," he said.

Humane Reform — A bereaved Florida father, who received a tax form addressed to his son killed in action, has brought a halt to the practice. "For the love of God," he wrote the Internal Revenue Service, "can't your people coordinate themselves with the military so that a man killed in the service of his country does not receive a due-bill for services rendered?" A copy of the letter was sent to Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., who took action through the House Monetary Affairs Committee. Under committee pressure, Commissioner Randolph Thrower reported back: "Hereafter, the three military departments will include the IRS among those receiving notification of death of servicemen." He said a letter explaining possible tax refunds to the survivors will be mailed out, and IRS district offices have been ordered to give survivors "personal attention... to deal with tragic situations in a humane way."

Smuggling Route — Narcotics agents have traced huge shipments of deadly heroin from the remote, rugged mountains of northern Thailand to the back alleys of America. Former Chinese Nationalist troops bring the opium down from the mountains to Chiangmai, Thailand. From there, the corrupted Thai army officials supervise the shipments to Bangkok. Then the raw opium is usually shipped in fishing trawlers to Hong Kong. In the dead of night, often in Red Chinese waters, the trawlers transfer the opium to local junks. In Hong Kong, industrious Chinese chemists convert the raw opium into high-grade heroin for smuggling either directly to the U.S. or through such Latin American countries as Colombia. Narcotics agents can pinpoint the Hong Kong heroin because it has minute traces of caffeine in it.

St. Patrick's Day

Many people erroneously suppose March 17 to be the anniversary of the birth of the apostle to Ireland. The date, however, is the traditional day on which St. Patrick died. It is his feast day, not his birthday.

Criticism Of Nixon On Right

By LEON DENNEN
NEA News Analyst

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (NEA) — Now it is conservatives and their allies on the right who are critical of President Nixon's foreign policy. They are increasingly unhappy about his efforts to improve relations with Red China.

Dennen

Diplomatic recognition by the United States of Peking's regime is still far away. It will take months—perhaps years—of tortuous negotiations to reach agreement on such thorny issues as Mao Tse-tung's claim to Taiwan and his insistence that Nationalist China should be expelled from the United Nations.

But critics of Nixon's policy are against any American-Chinese rapprochement. They can see only danger signals ahead.

This, unfortunately, is an unrealistic assessment of a complex international problem. As Nixon knows well, there are no simple solutions in diplomacy. Foreign relations cannot remain static for the simple reason that time does not stand still.

Undeniably the President is at his best when dealing with foreign affairs. He also understands communism.

Admittedly, Peking's Marxist-Leninist dictatorship is as obnoxious and dangerous as Moscow's. But, as Mr. Nixon sees it, the Red world is no longer a monolithic bloc. Because of the Russian-Chinese conflict, the "bloc" is now a group of states with a common Marxist-Leninist doctrine but with powerful and conflicting national interests to which Washington must from time to time adjust its policies.

Thus, friendlier relations with Peking might now be in the interest of the United States. There is certainly much to gain from a diplomatic thaw and little to lose.

For one thing, the balance of power in Southeast Asia is changing. Red China and not Russia is now the dominant force in the Asian Communist front which includes North Vietnam, North Korea, Laos and Cambodia.

It is no longer the men in Moscow but Peking's leaders who are in a position to cause an end to the war in Vietnam.

Equally important is the escalating Russian-Chinese ideological quarrel. Peking and Moscow are rivals for leadership of the world Communist movement in Lenin's name.

In addition, the Chinese have ancient and legitimate nationalist grounds for resentment against the Russian czars and their Communist successors.

The possibility of detente between the United States and China is therefore a growing and nagging concern to the Soviet leaders. They see it as evidence of an American-Chinese plot against Russia.

One of the most delicate diplomatic tasks for the Nixon administration may well be how to ease relations with Peking without antagonizing Russia.

The President made it repeatedly clear that he wants to be neither China's ally against the Soviet Union nor the Soviet Union's ally against China.

But this is no reason why the United States should play Moscow's game and help the Russians to keep China isolated.

Moreover, the admission of Peking to the United Nations Security Council—without, of course, depriving Taiwan of a seat in the General Assembly—could well be a major contribution toward lowering world tension.

Regrettably, the debate on Nixon's foreign policy is dominated by partisanship.

His liberal and leftist critics—the "revisionists"—reject altogether the underlying assumptions which have guided American policy since the end of World War II.

The conservatives and rightists, on their part, reject as a matter of conviction any adjustments in this policy to suit changing historical circumstances.

College To Benefit From Show

A "Talent Go Round" will be presented for parents and friends of students in the two local dance studios at 8 p.m. Monday at Sacred Heart High School auditorium. The event is sponsored by the American Business Women's Association and proceeds will go toward establishing a music or dance scholarship at State Fair Community College.

Performers for the show will be students of Mrs. James Kalthoff and Miss Joanie Baker.

Presentations will include tap, ballet, baton, gymnastic and modern dance. The students have a wide range of talents and have been preparing for the program since January.

This is the first program of its type in Sedalia and the two teachers are hoping it will be well attended. According to them, the students enjoy performing and it helps the students perfect their talents.

Democratic Women Note Anniversary

The Pettis County Women's Democratic Club held its 39th annual anniversary dinner Tuesday at Smith-Cotton High School cafeteria. Mrs. Daisy Parker gave the invocation and Mrs. Dottie Blaine, president introduced the officers of the fourth district.

Present were: Mrs. Grace Chapman, president; Mrs. Joella Smithmeir, first vice president; Mrs. Mayme McGirk, second vice president; and Mrs. Evelyn Marshall, third vice president. Other guests included Mrs. George Dobson, president of the Vernon County Women's Democratic Club and members of the Johnson, Saline, Vernon and Cass County Women's Democratic Clubs.

Mrs. Sallie Hailey, former national committeewoman of Missouri was the guest speaker. She reviewed the woman's role in the party and how women could effectively speak for both the young and older generations.

Entertainment for the evening was provided by Miss Marty Corson and John Gates accompanied by Miss Beth Dawson in a musical review of "Calamity Jane." Mrs. Suzanne Neirman, organist, also performed.

Past presidents of the local club were presented with corsages made by Mrs. Perry Strole. Honored were: Mrs. Opal Hugelmann, Mrs. John Devine, Mrs. E. L. Birdsong and Mrs. E. J. Thomas.

Mrs. Blaine thanked Mrs. Russell Kendrick and Mrs. Erma Beatty, members of the Johnson County Women's Democratic Club who made the favors distributed at the banquet.

Creates Home Designs

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Fashion designer Bill Blass, three-time winner of the American Fashion Critics award and member of the Fashion Hall of Fame, is designing what might be called the first do-it-yourself collection of designs for bedroom and bath.

He says his designer role is to compose the look. It will be up to the homemaker to put the bed linens, shower curtains and towels together. If she does a good job, the result should be original, and look as if she assembled it herself.

"The initial go-around will be a wardrobe of designs, not just one theme," Blass says. "It will be different from what my European colleagues are doing. Sheets and pillow cases will be an approach as I've used in clothes—stripes, geometrics, prints, dots will be mixed. But in assembling it, each set will look different. The prime innovation will be the use of three prints in each set."

The six forerunners in the line offer ideas for use in different kinds of houses—country, beach, city—and they will carry suggestions on the package for uses in various rooms. How one puts them together is the key to the individuality.

Blass says he searches the world for fabrics for his clothes designs, and that he is applying the same world-oriented look to some of these new home designs. One bedroom—bath print was inspired by a recent trip to Japan; another inspiration was provided by a chalet in Switzerland.

Blass is not the only designer who is directing his talents towards the home. Emilio Pucci, Oscar de la Renta, Yves St. Laurent, Lili Pulitzer and Vera also have home lines.

Car Patch Too Heavy To Mend Gloves

By POLLY CRAMER

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I have a supply of rubber gloves that have acquired a little hole in each. To save expense, does anyone know if thin patches can be bought for these gloves? I find car patching is too heavy to hold. —MRS. R. P. B.

DEAR POLLY — Shirley could shorten her crocheted dress as I did mine. I sewed across the desired length several times on the sewing machine and then cut the excess off just below the stitching. Button hole stitch over the edge or crochet over it. Mine turned out fine. —MRS. F. M.

DEAR POLLY — Shirley could shorten her crocheted dress by threading narrow ribbons, vertically, at intervals around the bottom and then pull them up evenly to the desired length. Tie a small bow at the top of each ribbon and the dress will look as if it were made that way. She could coordinate the colors or have them contrast. Should it be desired, the ribbons could be removed later to make the dress longer. —ELEANOR

DEAR POLLY — Mrs. B. B. could shorten her heavy knit dress that would be too bulky with a hem turned up by marking the proper length with chalk and then zig-zag stitching over this line twice by machine. Cut off the excess and use the same color yarn to crochet an edge around the bottom over the stitching. A contrasting color could be used and then the same edge added around the sleeves and neck of the dress. Mine turned out real nice and I could lengthen it again by adding more rows of crochet around the bottom. —M. S.

KC Trips Sox; Cardinals Lose

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Kansas City Royals unloaded two runs in the sixth and seventh innings ahead of a severe thunderstorm, that delayed the game 28 minutes, to defeat the Chicago White Sox 2-0 Wednesday night.

The St. Louis Cardinals ran into trouble when 21-year-old rookie Bobby Valentine blooped a hit into right field for a 6-5 Los Angeles victory over the Cards in Busch Stadium.

In the Royals-Sox game, Paul Schaaf ripped his fourth triple of the season in the sixth to score Ed Kirkpatrick for the first run. Amos Otis cracked his seventh homer of the season in the seventh.

Mike Hedlund shut out the White Sox for his fourth victory after dropping the last two. He had a four-hitter until the ninth when he gave up singles to Ed Herrmann and Mike Andrews.

In St. Louis, Bob Gibson had a 5-2 lead after five innings but permitted the Dodgers to tie it at 5-5. Valentine came up in the eighth and hit a high slider into right field, scoring pinch-runner Von Joshua.

Left-hander Steve Carlton (6-2) of the Cards faces right-hander Bill Singer of the Dodgers this afternoon in the finale of three-game finale.

The Royals are idle today before opening a three-game series against Milwaukee in Kansas City.

Expos 10-4 Victim

Brave Bats Ring Loud

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Mike Lum's new bats and Clete Boyer's old legs have had a brisk workout, but it's nothing compared to the exercise Chief Noc-A-Homa's been getting this week.

Lum and Boyer each drove in three runs with a pair of homers Wednesday night, sending Atlanta mascot Noc-A-Homa into orbit four times as the fence-busting Braves shelled the Montreal Expos 10-4.

Lum, filling in for sore-legged slugger Hank Aaron, belted his second and third homers of the season while breaking in a new set of bats delivered just before the game.

Boyer crashed his second homer of the night—and sixth in his last eight starts—after chugging around the bases earlier in the game for an apparent inside-the-park shot which, in reality, had cleared the fence and caromed off Noc-A-Homa's teepee back onto the field.

The Chief, who celebrates each Atlanta homer with a war dance, has been gyrating at a marathon pace in the Braves' last three games. They have walloped 11 homers—to seven for the opposition—while winning all three to move within 7½ games of pace-setting San Francisco in the National League West.

There have been 59 homers hit in 21 games at Atlanta this season—30 by the home team.

The Chicago Cubs thumped the Giants 9-5 in an afternoon game behind the two-homer, six-RBI slugging of Billy Williams.

In other NL night games, Pittsburgh whipped Cincinnati 6-1; Philadelphia trimmed the New York Mets 4-1; Los Angeles nipped St. Louis 6-5 and San Diego edged Houston 2-1 in 10 innings.

Boyer, who has homered in each of the last three games, capped a five-run Atlanta flurry in the third inning with his two-run inside-the-park wallop that wasn't.

The ball ticked off the glove of left fielder Jim Gosger and ricocheted off Noc-A-Homa's wigwam beyond the fence. Neither Boyer nor the umpires were aware it had gone out.

Confirmation that the ball had cleared the barrier came from Noc-A-Homa between innings, and what would have been the first inside-the-park homer of Boyer's 16-year major league career went by the boards.

Boyer led off the sixth with a drive far over the left field fence and Lum followed with another homer to right. Lum completed the long-ball barrage with a two-run blast in the eighth.

At Chicago, Williams smacked a three-run homer in the first inning a bases-empty homer in the third and a two-run triple in the sixth, powering the Cubs to their seventh victory in eight games.

Golf Tournament Saturday, Sunday

CAMDENTON — The Lake Valley Golf and Country Club will hold its annual Amateur Spring 18-Hole Men's Golf Tournament Saturday and Sunday, here.

Entry fee for the event is $20; $2,000 in prizes will be awarded following the tourney play.

Contestants may play their 18 holes either day.

Club professional Bob Bratzler is now accepting entries.

Big Football Trade

Rentzel Traded To Los Angeles

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys have traded off a public relations problem, grabbed a needed clutch-receiving tight end and bagged two flashy wide receivers to add leverage to their Bob Hayes negotiations in a lightning series of National Football League swaps involving seven players.

Wide receiver Lance Rentzel, on probation for five years for indecent exposure, was traded Wednesday to the Los Angeles Rams for tight end Billy Truax and wide receiver Wendell Tucker.

Lance Alworth of San Diego, the seventh-ranking receiver in professional football, was sent to the Cowboys in exchange for tight end Pettis Norman, offensive tackle Tony Liscio and defensive tackle Ron East.

The Cowboys, who only recently obtained speedy flanker Gloster Richardson from the Kansas City Chiefs, have been searching for more receiving help after Hayes, who played out his option in 1970, decided to shop about for a possible new team.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said of the Alworth trade: "Alworth's record speaks for itself. You look at all the receivers in the 1960s and you have to have to rate Alworth the top receiver for that period. We feel he has several outstanding years still in him. We were very reluctant to trade men the caliber of Norman, Liscio and East, but when the chance for Alworth came we couldn't pass it up."

Rentzel's trade came because Cowboys' officials felt it would be best for him and the team. Rentzel pleaded guilty to a charge of exposing himself to a 10-year-old girl last November and didn't play in the Cowboy's stretch drive to the Super Bowl.

Rentzel, 27, husband of motion picture and television personality Joey Heatherton, said: "When you think about it, I think this is the best thing for all parties. I'm grateful they traded me to an area where I have so many friends and to such a good team and a fine organization."

No Strike Is Seen By Pro Grid Union

DETROIT (AP) — Another National Football League players strike?

Tiger Baseballer Suffers Injury

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — University of Missouri second baseman and team captain Denny Alberts suffered an arm fracture during a practice session Tuesday and will miss the Tigers' final series against Oklahoma in Norman, Okla., this weekend.

Alberts was injured when he collided with a runner as he attempted to take a wide throw to first base. Bob Hirst will replace Alberts in the lineup.

Despite an unfair labor practices suit filed against the owners there won't be a strike this July, according to Ed Flanagan, player-representative of the Detroit Lions.

"We don't anticipate a strike at all. It's the furthest thing from our minds," the All-Pro center said from his suburban Detroit home. "None of the player reps has even mentioned a strike."

Although the contract dispute last summer between the NFL Players Association and the Owners Negotiating Committee was settled in time for the exhibition season, it seems it was not really settled at all.

The 1,200-member NFLPA reached a handshake agreement last Aug. 2 with the owners and it was eight meetings later, on Feb. 27, 1971, that an agreement was signed.

But the Players Association has since accused the owners of changing much of the wording of the agreement and subsequently filed the unfair labor practices charges in Minneapolis last month.

"We're waiting for the NLRB to come up with a decision," Flanagan said. "I don't see any possibility of a strike at all. Our differences are minimal. They're very small, and I think we'll be able to work them out."

"The players have decided to report to camp and feel this will all be settled by July. All the money matters are settled. There are only small matters involved... Certain matters are unclear and need a little discussion, but dental, pension and other problems are settled."

McLaren Cars Have . . .

Big Advantage at Indy

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — "The McLarens have a bigger advantage than Parnelli Jones' STP turbine had in 1967," said Bobby Unser, who will start beside the Mark 16 McLarens of Peter Revson and Mark Donohue in the front row of the 55th 500-mile race May 29 at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Vince Granatelli, who was Jones' chief mechanic in the 1967 race, nodded agreement. "Look at the qualifying figures," said Unser, the 1968 Indy winner. Revson took the pole last Saturday at 178.696 miles an hour beating the 177.087 of Donohue, who had done over 180 in practice.

Bobby Unser did 175.816 in a Gurney Eagle with a turbo-charged Offenhauser engine similar to that used by the McLarens.

In 1967, Jones and his Pratt & Whitney turbine engine were only the sixth-fastest qualifier at 166.075. Mario Andretti won the pole at 168.982 with a conventional engine but lost a wheel in the race.

Jones ran away from the field in the first lap and led A. J. Foyt Jr. by two miles when a bearing failed with 10 miles to go.

Vince Granatelli, whose brother Andy heads the STP gasoline and oil additive company, is still doing a slow burn over complaints that Jones was "sandbagging" in practice and qualifications for the 1967 race. Sandbagging is deliberately turning one corner at relatively slow speed on each lap, giving observers low speed readings. An easier, more obvious way is to hold down straightaway speeds.

"No driver is going to sandbag," Granatelli insisted, "getting ready for this race." Bobby Unser, chatting with the STP master mechanic during a Thursday shower, agreed.

The USAC committee since then has reduced the air intake area allowed turbine engines on two occasions, virtually taking them out of competition.

OU Frosh Gives Sooners Lead

AMES, Ia. (AP)—Oklahoma gained sole possession of first place in the Big Eight baseball pennant chase here yesterday by lacing the defending champion, Iowa State, 5-1.

Freshman Jackson Todd struck out 14 batters and yielded only five hits to hand the Sooners the rubber game of the 3-game series.

The victory boosted Oklahoma's conference mark to 12-6 and dropped Iowa State one full game behind at 11-7. Each team has three remaining games. Oklahoma plays host to Missouri while Iowa State travels to Nebraska this weekend.

The Sooners pushed across three unearned runs in the second inning off loser Mike Gillespie. Pat Parkhurst went to second base after catcher Larry Corrigan dropped a third-strike pitch and threw past first base. An infield single by Joe Simpson and a double off Jim Nosari's bat scored the first run. Simpson and Nosari both scored when third baseman Steve Norris' throw on an infield grounder was wide at first.

A lead-off triple by Simpson and Nosari's single netted another run in the third. Parkhurst's fifth-inning single chased in the other run.

Larry Dietrich's seventh-inning homer was the only damage done during Todd's 9-inning stint.

Blue Records Ninth Win

Oakland's Vida Blue shows his form the season against Milwaukee. Blue Wednesday night as he recorded his ninth straight win and fifth shutout of the season against Milwaukee. Blue and the A's blanked the Brewers, 3-0.

Blue Hurls 5th Shutout

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

With Fort Knox gold, Kelly green and wedding gown white, you'd hardly expect the Oakland A's to fit any more colors into their scheme.

They have, though—Blue. Not just plain Blue. But Vida Blue.

"You have to make up new words to describe him," Oakland Manager Dick Williams says of his super southpaw with the blurring-white fastball.

Blue continues to color blind American League batters and, Wednesday night, won his ninth straight game with a three-hit, 3-0 whitewashing of Milwaukee. Not incidentally, it was the fifth shutout for the dazzling 22-year-old.

"I'm learning as I go along," says Blue, who must be one of the fastest learners in baseball. The only time he lost was on Opening Day to the Washington Senators.

In the other American League games, Kansas City beat Chicago 2-0; Detroit humbled Cleveland 12-1; Boston whipped New York 7-2; Baltimore topped Washington 4-1 and Minnesota creamed California 12-6.

Blue, who pitched a one-hitter and a no-hitter last season after being called up to the big time from the minors in September, says he still is not completely confident on the mound. He points to catcher Dave Duncan as an ego-builder.

Blue had control problems in the early innings, walking a batter in each of the first three frames, but got better as it got later and wound up pitching one of his strongest games.

After the rocky beginning, Blue at one point retired 10 batters in a row before Danny Walton's single opened the seventh. The only other Milwaukee hits were singles by Roberto Pena in the third and Ron Theobald in the eighth.

What did Williams have to say about his brightest star on a pitching-rich staff?

"Well, he's not much of a hitter," Williams quipped.

Mike Hedlund unfurled a six-hitter with last-out relief help from Ted Abernathy as Kansas City shaded Chicago on Paul Schaal's run-scoring triple in the sixth inning and Amos Otis' home run in the seventh.

Chicago's Bart Johnson hand-cuffed Kansas City on one hit until the sixth when Schaal's triple chased home Ed Kirkpatrick, who had walked. Otis cracked his seventh homer off reliever Joel Hoerner to give Hedlund an insurance run. Abernathy retired pinch-hitter Walt Williams for the final out after singles by Ed Herrmann and Mike Andrews.

Dick McAuiliffe knocked pin-four runs with a home run and double and Al Kaline unloaded his first two homers of the year as Detroit scored in every inning but the seventh and steam-rolled Cleveland.

McAuiliffe doubled home two runs in the fourth, then lashed a two-run homer in the eighth during a five-run spurge. Mickey Lolich breezed to his sixth victory, allowing six hits in the seven innings he worked, and built his lifetime mark to 22-8 over the Indians.

Unbeaten Sonny Siebert nailed down his seventh victory as Boston beat New York. Reggie Smith's two-run homer in the seventh snapped a 2-2 tie and the Red Sox scored three more times in the eighth. Siebert struggled most of the way, giving up eight hits, walking four and hitting one batter before leaving for a pinch-hitter in the eighth. The Yankees scored in the fourth on a bases-loaded walk to pitcher Steve Kline and in the seventh on Roy White's sacrifice fly which temporarily tied the game.

The Baltimore Orioles scored two runs without a hit in the first inning and spoiled a sparkling pitching debut by 21-year-old Mike Thompson. The Senators' rookie, called up from the minors only last Sunday, allowed just one single to pitcher Jim Palmer in seven innings of work. Palmer checked Washington on five hits to notch his sixth victory.

Tony Oliva socked his 10th homer and drove in three runs and Charmin' Harmon Killbrew delivered three more with a two-run single and bases-loaded walk as Minnesota wiped out an early 5-2 California lead to beat the Angels.

A letter from Philadelphia reads in part: "I remember A. B. Y. and Z before their places in columns were taken by North, South, East and West. In the old days Z didn't make every hand. Doesn't he ever get set now-a-days?"

Z decided that his four clubs made an unusual no-trump undesirable. If he bid it, Y would become declarer and Z did not relish the prospect. So he passed after B opened with one spade. The bidding progressed as one might expect and Z wound up as declarer at four diamonds doubled.

B won the first trick with the king of hearts and saw that a spade lead was inicated. He and A had been working on suit preference signals so B led the deuce of spades. A ruffed and returned his fourth best club to B's king. B gave his partner another spade ruff whereupon A led his queen of trumps.

After this start there was no way for poor Z to get a trick out of dummy. He wound up losing two spade ruffs, four clubs and a heart for minus 700 and a bottom score. The best East and West could do as declarer would be to pick up 650 points.

"You boys still defend better than anyone," said Z. "I was afraid to double you," remarked A. "I've seen you perform too many miracles. This time you couldn't do anything because your opponents wouldn't let you in the lead."

Contempt Charge For Bacon

SEATTLE (AP) — Leslie Bacon has been cited for contempt of court and jailed for refusing to answer a federal grand jury's question about the U.S. Capitol bombing despite being granted limited immunity.

Miss Bacon, 19-year-old anti-war activist, was ordered jailed by Judge William Goodwin "for the life of the grand jury," which ends next March, or until she answers the questions.

Her attorneys contended the limited immunity from prosecution granted Wednesday was too narrow. They said they would appeal Goodwin's ruling to the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco.

Jennie Rhine, one of the Atherton, Calif., girl's attorneys, said "most all" the questions had been answered by her client in earlier testimony before the jury.

Miss Bacon cited constitutional grounds in her refusal. Previously, she had been ordered to answer all questions about the attempted fire-bombing of a New York City bank. She is charged in New York with conspiracy in planning the attempt.

Miss Bacon's attorneys said they were trying to determine whether the contempt order took precedence over the New York warrant.

Federal authorities took the girl's possessions to city jail from a hotel. She was brought to Seattle on April 29, after being arrested in Washington, D.C. April 27 as a material witness in the Capitol bombing and held under $100,000 bail.

Among the questions asked Miss Bacon in open court were: "Whether she told anyone 'that you came to Washington, D.C. to participate in the plans to bomb the Capitol.'"

—Whether she had collected money in Washington and said she was "going to Boston to get explosives for the Capitol bombing."

—If she had attended meetings in Virginia during January and February "at which the Capitol bombing was discussed."

—If she knew the people who traveled from Seattle to Ann Arbor, Mich., in February to plan the Mayday demonstrations in Washington, D.C.

—To Describe a conversation in Washington, D.C. with Jeff Leibling, Chris Lamb, Stuart Albert, Judy Gumbo, Colin Neiberger, Michael Tola, Terry

Taub and Ken Kelley.

—And to "describe for the grand jury a conversation on March 1, 1971 at 2226 M St. N.W., Washington, D.C., in which Stuart Albert made the remark in connection with the bomb used in the U.S. Capitol that it contained 20 sticks."

"I have no intention of answering those questions," Miss Bacon told the judge.

She said she had answered some of the questions "over and over again" and added, "The government is trying to frame me and other innocent people to make their own paranoid fantasies come true."

Agnew Not Needed

Senate Rejection Is Firm

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew was in the chair, but the administration never came close to needing him as the Senate refused its majority leader's demand for a cutback in U.S. forces in Western Europe.

The votes were all one way, President Nixon's way, in the Wednesday night decisions on the troop-cut issue pressed by Sen. Mike Mansfield.

The tie that would have permitted an Agnew vote never was closer than 25 votes as the Senate enforced the President's no-compromise stand on the troop issue.

Nixon, refusing to budge, presided over an eight-day campaign that recruited former Democratic Presidents Lyndon B. Johnson and Harry S. Truman as well as many past diplomatic and military figures.

So strong was the White House stance that it rejected the advice of Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott to work out a "just-in-case" compromise. As it turned out, the administration didn't need one.

By the time Mansfield's measure to compel the withdrawal of half the 300,000 troops by Dec. 31 was came to a vote there was no doubt about the outcome and the proposal was defeated 61 to 36.

But an earlier, substitute proposal by Sen. Charles McMathias, R-Md., was the one that most concerned administration strategists seeking to avoid any Senate measure on the troop issue.

Mathias would have urged troop withdrawal negotiations and required periodic presidential reports to Congress on such talks.

Republican strategists had feared an alliance of Mathias and Mansfield supporters that might have pushed the negotiate-and-report measure to a majority.

"We figured a lot of people around here wanted to vote for something, and that might be it," one Republican strategist said.

They need not have worried Mansfield and his allies were no more interested in such a compromise than the administration. In effect, they opted for nothing rather than for the Mathias plan and it was beaten 73 to 24.

Mansfield said afterwards the suggestion of Leonid Brezhnev, Soviet Communist Party chairman, for East-West negotiations on troop reductions, likely was a significant factor in the outcome of the vote.

Then he turned back into the Senate chamber and, at the door, met Kenneth E. Belieu, one of the administration's chief lobbyists on the troop issue.

They shook hands. "Well Ken, you did a good job, didn't you," Mansfield said. "That's the way a democracy operates."

Nixon Wins Troop Cut Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has won his hard-fought battle against Senate proposals to cut U.S. troop strength in Europe. But his authority in foreign relations faces further challenges in Congress.

By a vote of 61 to 36, the Senate Wednesday night rejected a proposal by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield requiring a 50-per-cent cut in the 300,000-man U.S. European force by the end of 1971.

The Senate had rejected earlier a series of less-sweeping proposals on one-sided votes which masked strong feeling that something should be done about the large U.S. force remaining in Europe 20 years after it was sent there.

Mansfield told the Senate his fight had achieved its minimum goal of increasing awareness of the problem.

But he expressed regret "there has been no hint of an understanding from downtown (the White House) or overseas." He vowed to try again.

Defeat of the Mansfield amendment ended one of the major side issues in Senate debate on House-passed legislation to extend the draft beyond its June 30 expiration date.

After draft-related issues are settled, probably next week, an attempt will be made to use the bill in a new effort to cut off funds for U.S. operations in Indochina beyond Dec. 31.

Waiting in the wings is a far broader challenge to presidential authority: three similar bills to limit a chief executive's power to commit American forces overseas without a congressional declaration of war.

From the time nine days ago when Mansfield announced he would seek an amendment requiring troop reductions in Europe, the administration had taken a strong position against any compromise.

The White House recruited a potent coalition of elder statesmen and generals long prominent in Atlantic alliance activities and former Democratic Presidents Harry S. Truman and Lyndon B. Johnson.

Though a majority of senators had backed past Mansfield efforts carrying no legal impact, the administration's argument against tying presidential hands won heavy backing, especially among Republican members. Only five GOP senators voted with Mansfield Wednesday.

In Brussels, a NATO spokesman who declined to be identified expressed gratitude the troop-cut proposals had been defeated. European diplomats had said beforehand a heavy vote for cutbacks—even if not a majority—could hurt Western negotiations with the Soviet Union.

Vote Buries Transport Planning

WASHINGTON (AP) — The supersonic transport, burdened by controversy and a billion-dollar price increase, has been killed again by the Senate, this time, it appears, for good.

Fifty eight senators agreed late Wednesday night the American SST bore a price tag in economic and environmental terms the nation could not afford.

Only 37 senators supported federally subsidized production of the pencil-thin, faster-than-sound craft needed, its backers claimed, to maintain American dominance in the world's aviation markets.

Even before its formal defeat the White House conceded the demise of the program promoted by every President since John F. Kennedy initiated it nearly a decade ago at a cost that has reached $800 million.

Having killed the SST, the Senate agreed to pay for the funeral.

It voted 92 to 3 to appropriate $155.8 million in termination money split three ways: $85.3 million to SST contractors, $58.5 million to the airlines which had deposited that much in good-faith cash in 1967, and $12 million to shut down the SST office of the Department of Transportation.

Both the Democratic and Republican leaders of the House said after the Senate vote they saw little chance their chamber would revive the SST.

Thus, the attempt to have the government underwrite the most controversial plane in the annals of aviation appears to have died.

Last year the Senate voted to end the federal development role only to have the House insist on continuing the project, a view upheld in a conference committee. Then last March both the House and the Senate decided against the plane, leading to the conclusion the SST was doomed.

It was a surprise, therefore, when the House voted last week to restore the supersonic transport by turning $85 million in SST termination money included in a supplemental appropriation into a fund to restart the project.

Mass Production

AEC Plans Bomb Test

MERCURY, Nev. (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission is getting ready to test the first atomic bomb designed to be mass produced for peaceful use in the United States.

The bomb is designed to fracture sandstone formations found under several Western states and release natural gas trapped in the rock. The AEC says such devices could ultimately double the nation's dwindling natural gas reserve.

The device will be tested here at the Nevada Test Site in early June under the code name Miniat. If all goes well, test and production shots could be made next year.

A. Dean Thornbrough, director of the AEC's office of peaceful nuclear explosives, said in an interview Wednesday that the Miniat device, about 9 inches wide and 30 feet long, is designed to release very little radioactivity.

When atomic explosions are used in gas production the chief by-product of concern is tritium, a radioactive isotope of hydrogen. Combined with the methane in natural gas, tritium could be carried into the home, released when the gas is burned and absorbed by people.

Miniat will release less than one-tenth the tritium produced by any previous nuclear explosive, Thornbrough said, and some of those devices were designed to reduce tritium release.

"The use of the gas in a home should not produce more than a small fraction of the background radiation that you get just from living where you live," he said.

Thornbrough said the Miniat device is much smaller in diameter than previous nuclear devices and is engineered to slide down the standard pipe used to drill natural gas fields.

CER Geonuclear Corp., a consortium of major oil and natural gas companies, wants to develop a natural gas field in western Colorado using nuclear explosives, with a schedule of 20 to 60 production shots within five years.

El Paso Natural Gas Co. has proposed a similar series of shots in the Green River Basin of western Wyoming.

Hearnes—Danforth Shunted

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A plan to clear the way for a possible 1972 governorship contest between Democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and Republican Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth was shunted into the Senate's Budget Control Committee Wednesday.

Sen. J. F. Patterson, D-Caruthersville, president pro tem, sent the proposed constitutional amendment to the tough budget control committee which he heads.

He said he would take full responsibility for his action and did not want to be "taken off the hook" by allowing the Senate to vote on the measure.

Under the proposal the constitutional residency requirement for gubernatorial candidates would be cut from 10 to five years. That would open the door for Danforth to run.

At the same time it would remove the two-term limitation on the governor, which would allow Hearnes to run.

Neither Hearnes nor Danforth has committed himself to make the race even should it become possible by the voters' adoption of such an amendment—if it ever got that far.

Sen. Richard M. Webster, R-Carthage, considered a potential candidate himself, raised the point of order which sidetracked the proposal.

He said a special election on the amendment would cost more than $295,000 and might reach half a million dollars if it were held when no other elections were scheduled.

So far the Budget Committee has not acted on any bills and Patterson indicated it wouldn't until appropriation bills are passed and the state's fiscal outlook becomes clearer.

Government Statistics Show Cattlemen Prosper

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government statistics show cattlemen do better than most other producers in competing for the largest share of the consumer's food dollar. But more than one-third of what a housewife spends on beef still winds up in middleman pockets.

A detailed report on marketing and transportation costs issued Wednesday by the Agriculture Department shows cattle producers on the average got 65 cents of each dollar spent in retail stores on beef during the first quarter of the year.

That was 6 cents more than last October-December and 2 cents more than in the first three months of 1970, the report said.

A summary of the report, issued last week, showed that for all products farmers averaged 38 cents of each retail food dollar. That was up 1 cent from the fourth quarter of 1970.

The full report included a detailed breakdown for a variety of "market basket" food items and how much farmers and middlemen got for each during January-March.

Butter was the only item exceeding beef in terms of a producer's share. Dairymen, according to the report, got 72 cents of each dollar spent on butter during the first quarter, up 1 cent from the previous three months but 3 cents less than a year earlier.

Meat products generally have a higher ratio of return to producers than other items which require much more processing and labor to get them from the farm, packaged and onto retail shelves.

Pork returned 44 cents to farmers in the first quarter, compared with only 40 in October-December. But that was far less than the 59 cents farmers got in the first quarter of 1970 and the 1957-59 average of 55 cents.

The classic examples of high retail costs to consumer in relation to what farmers got for ingredients are bread and corn flakes. Wheat producers received 10 cents of each dollar consumers spent on bread, while corn growers got 9 cents for a dollar's worth of flakes.

Other items and the farmer's share in cents of each dollar consumers spent on them included:

Milk sold in stores 51 cents; ready-to-cook chickens 46; eggs 58; flour 35; apples 30; grapefruit 21; oranges 25; tomatoes 46; canned peaches 18; frozen french fries 15; peanut butter 33; and sugar 41.

Seale Confident

Black Panther Party Chairman Bobby G. Seale appeared confident as he arrived at the Montville State Correctional Center in Connecticut Wednesday, following the first day of jury deliberation in his trial in connection with the murder of Alex Rackley being held at the New Haven Superior Court. Overzealous?

Antiwar Help Unwanted

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats trying to put a termination date on U.S. involvement in the Vietnam War are getting more help than they want from Rep. Bella S. Abzug.

To the dismay of other antiwar Democrats, Mrs. Abzug, D-N.Y., is leading a fight to make the Democratic Caucus vote on a resolution calling for withdrawal of U.S. troops from Indochina by Dec. 31.

Congressional courtesy, buttressed no doubt by justifiable fears of her sharp tongue, deters antiwar members from commenting publicly on her latest effort. But their private comments make it clear they feel she is doing them more harm than good.

It's hard to say which annoys her colleagues more, the fact she is making the fight or leading it. There is a widespread feeling among them that no good can come from pressing the fight in the caucus and that disaster can only result from her leadership.

The antiwar movement in the House has been gaining steadily due largely to quiet, patient, behind-the-scenes lobbying by respected members and outside peace groups. To such tactics, Bella, as everyone calls her, is a stranger.

With the quiet patience of a bulldozer she has shattered the traditional image of a freshman member of Congress and emerged in five short months as a highly vocal, voluble, larger-than-life champion of the peace movement and all who join it.

When Bella disclosed her intention to present her resolution to the monthly Democratic Caucus Wednesday, members who had sponsored a similar effort two months ago and were casting about cautiously for a follow-up move tried to dissuade her.

The earlier effort ended with a compromise supporting withdrawal by Dec. 31, 1972, after the original proposal was defeated 101 to 100. No one was particularly happy or unhappy with the outcome but most were content to let the matter lie.

Not Bella. In the intervening months eight members who voted with the 101 have switched to support a Dec. 31, withdrawal and 13 who were absent have pledged support. The chances are good the caucus would adopt the original resolution now and Bella wants to find out.

Unable to persuade her to back down, the Democrats stayed away from Wednesday's caucus in droves, depriving it of a quorum and forcing adjournment before any action was taken. This probably will happen as long as Bella persists.

I-70 Accident

Kills One Woman

SALINA, Kan. (AP) — Mrs. Maude A. Lindemeyer, 67, of Kansas City, Mo., was killed Wednesday when a car she was driving left Interstate 70, three miles east of Salina, and hit a guard cable.

Injured in the accident were Fred Lindemeyer, 74, husband of the victim, and Leona Studer, 73, also of Kansas City. Both were reported in fair condition in a Salina hospital.

The highway patrol said Mrs. Lindemeyer was thrown from the car when it hit the cable. The vehicle then traveled down a steep embankment and was hidden from view of passing traffic until motorists spotted the woman and stopped to help.

Burns Are Fatal

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Mrs. Eileen Dudgeon, 26, who was burned April 13 while trying to ignite a charcoal grill with gasoline, died Wednesday at St. Mary's Hospital.

Mrs. Dudgeon was enveloped by flames when the gasoline exploded. Police said she used the gasoline after lighter fluid had apparently failed to start the fire.

Clean Desk Is Sign Of Frightened Mind

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — A clean desk is the sign of a frightened mind. I've said this before, and I now say it again.

I was nearly scared out of my wits a month ago when, bowing to popular office demand, I let the vast hump of debris atop my desk be cleaned off.

That represented a tremendous sacrifice to me. To those around me that tower of rubble was only an eyesore and a needless mess. To me it was a mound of marvels, the many-layered story of my life. It represented conservation, sanctuary, security.

You'd think that with everybody else in America hellbent trying to throw everything away, anyone who tried to save something would be regarded as a hero. Not if he tries to save it on his desk!

The pressure mounted day by day. First came a parade of memos from paper clip Hitlers sternly ordering that my desk pile be removed. I put the memos on top of the pile. Then the paper clip Hitlers came in person and shouted in my ears until my head rang.

Then the fire department came and said spontaneous combustion was an imminent possibility, and they'd have to hose off the desk. Then a fellow in a false mustache who said he represented the federal government arrived and threatened to have the desk declared a national disaster area and bulldozed to the floor.

"Couldn't we just have it roped off and declared a national shrine?" I asked. No go.

Well, finally after telegrams for help to the American Civil Liberties Union and the U.S. Supreme Court brought no response, I caved in.

"All right, clean it off," I whispered brokenly. "We might as well all go to hell with clean desks together."

The volunteer for this task was a fellow worker, Miss Dee Wedemeyer, a lovely and talented young writer from North Carolina, but so determined that she probably could have cleaned the Augean stables in three days less time than it took Hercules.

In five hours she removed every trace of the magical clutter it had taken me five hard years to accumulate.

"Isn't it beautiful!" she exclaimed.

There the desktop gleamed, bare as a baby's behind after a bubble bath. But beautiful? No, indeed.

I never have had such a feeling of utter fright. I stretched out my arms across that empty desk and knew a terrible ache of loneliness.

I missed my paper mountain of memories. I felt as exposed as a woman with a shaved head or an alligator crawling across Death Valley.

There was no place to hide. The telephone, ordinarily muffled by half a ton of junk, now stood clearly in view. I would have to start answering it again—the final indignity.

Well, in life there are compensations for every loss, and gradually I'm losing my fear and getting my old courage back.

In less than a month I've got my desk covered with a six-inch layer of fresh debris—wonderful, wonderful stuff.

I figure that if I work hard and fast enough I'll have a 10-foot pile of grab-bag charm built up before the office paper clip Hitlers start marching my way again. But this time they'll simply have to declare my desk a national monument—if not a shrine.

Surely there couldn't be a law on earth that would force a man to clean off his desk twice in one lifetime, could there?

Nash Is Dead

Humorist-poet Ogden Nash died in Baltimore at the age of 68 Wednesday. He had been admitted to a hospital a week ago for abdominal surgery. (UPI)

Debt Might Choke America—Ellender

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, the world's wealthiest nation, may choke on its debts, says Sen. Allen Ellender, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

The Louisiana Democrat told his colleagues Tuesday the current national debt of nearly $400 billion is like a mountain so big it can't be seen.

"That is a sum greater than the debt of all the other countries in the world," Ellender declared.

He said he had put his staff and a bank of computers to work to make the size of a $400 billion debt more comprehensible, with these results:

—If every member of the United States Senate counted two, one-dollar bills every second of every minute of every hour of every day of every week, it would take approximately 64 years to count $400 billion.

—If the senators worked the standard work year eight hours per day for 260 days a year taking no coffee breaks, or holidays or vacations, it would take them 267 years to accomplish the same count.

—At its current capacity, it would take the Bureau of Printing and Engraving about 171 years to print 400 billion one-dollar bills.

—$400 billion in one-dollar bills would fill about 3,456 rail-way boxcars, making a train almost 36 miles long.

—The 400,000,000,000 one-dollar bills stacked on top of each other would reach about 27,095 miles, or 4 1/2 trips from New York to Los Angeles.

—Placed end to end, that many bills would make a path, 160 bills or 35 feet wide, to the moon. "End to end the bills would encircle the equator 1,552 times."
